THE IDEAL STUDENT

There are several distinct types of students. There are those who are indifferent to all tasks set before them. There are those concerned with only the smaller things of life and who fail to devote their whole-hearted efforts to the accomplishment of lasting things. There are others whose sole aim is to make an impression. One could go indefinitely naming the types of students, but, after all, there is the ideal student.

"Ideal, as defined by Webster," is an imaginary degree of perfection." His definition for "student is a person engaged in studying or learning." An ideal student, therefore, is a person engaged in learning who has attained, to a certain degree, perfection. Then the ideal student is one who is in complete possession of almost all of the admirable qualities.

It is taken for granted that the ideal student is trustworthy, loyal, truthful, honest, and other equally descriptive, yet nevertheless worn-out objectives. So let us study some of the real qualities of the ideal student which remain hidden and are discerned only by minute inspection.

The ideal student is in school with an express purpose. It may be to make his parents and teachers proud of him through his accomplishments. It may even be to be agreeable with his teachers or to excel in his studies which is not utterly impossible for any student to accomplish.

The ideal student is a thinker. His thoughts, though directed into many channels, are never shallow. They are deep, clean, and of high standards. His thoughts must be deep in order to think through a situation which would dumbfound the ordinary pupil. They must be clean, high, and noble, else how can he reach a great goal from which he cannot deviate?

An ideal student is obsessed with the idea of work. Linked with work we find ambition. These two act in cooperation. The ideal student works to accomplish certain ends which he could not have otherwise achieved without ambition.

Combining the qualities I have mentioned, we find that the working, thoughtful, ambitious person who has the more common qualities of the ordinary student is the ideal student. Taking all in all, are the things needed to be possessed by the ideal student absolutely impossible to reach through a reasonable amount of effort? I think not, for the simple reason that one can reach anything which he has his heart set upon and which he has set out to obtain. Since defeat is only a state of mind, why can we not make victory the same? —James Wood.

O'DELL SCOTT WINS POSTER CONTEST

O'Dell Scott was chosen as the winner of the poster contest to advertise the senior play, "Polly With a Past." Much interest, as well as talent, was displayed in the contest as shown by the fact that over thirty posters were entered.

The winning poster by O'Dell Scott is now on exhibit in Galloway's Cafe. Some others who entered attractive posters were Nina Dellinger, Saint Claire Austin, and Jack Huggins. These are also on display in various windows of the business section of town.

Mrs. DeLong, who is directing the play, sponsored the contest.

HARLESTON MCINTOSH

Harleston McIntosh, lovely heroine of the senior play, was born at Rosman in 1921. She attended her first year of school at Lake Toxaway, and the following year came to Brevard where she has been very outstanding in scholastic work as well as in athletics. For four years she has gone out for basketball, and this year she made the team and received her letter. Her favorite sports are swimming and basketball, and she is very fond of dogs and horses. (She likes Janet Jenkins too.)

Outstanding scholastically, "Hottie" ranks fifth in the senior class. Her hobbies are keeping scrapbooks, stamp collecting, drawing, and reading. Her favorite authors are Dumas and Victor Hugo. "Hottie" likes to knit too when she doesn't have anything else to occupy her time. She is a member of the Girl Scouts and is interested in 4-H Club work also.

Harleston has many qualities that give her a charming personality, but the most outstanding is her sense of humor which she displays very frequently. She has a soft voice, an admirable thing in woman.

"Hottie's" ambition is to get on the first honor roll this month. (She doesn't want any of the teachers to know this, of course). As yet she has not decided what her life work will be. We are sure, however, that her charming personality will help her achieve her heart's desire.

BREVARD LOSES TO CHRIST SCHOOL

C. Loftis was the leading man for the Blue Devils with two hits for four times at bat, and Bartley lead with a home run for the Greensboro.

The battery was as follows: Brevard, Brown and Shuford; Christ School, Picklesimer and Bartley.

SOPHOMORE GIRLS AND SENIOR BOYS WIN SOFT BALL TOURNAMENT

The soft ball tournament ended this week with the sophomore girls and the senior boys as winners. The sophomore girls beat the junior girls in a three game play-off of soft ball. The juniors won the first game; the second game was a close tie; but the sophomore girls walked away with the pennant in the third and final game. Jeanne Hayes was outstanding for the sophomore girls, while Justus played well for the juniors.

The senior boys took the third game of the play-off by beating the sophomore boys 5 to 4. Teague and Shuford were highlights for the seniors while Morris and Jackson showed up for the sophomores. This is the third time this group of boys has won this tournament.

EDWARD WALKER GLAZENER

Edward Walker Glazener, one of the outstanding members of the junior class, was born in Raleigh, North Carolina, sixteen years ago. His family moved to Elberle, North Carolina when Edward was a year old, and two years later, took up permanent residence in Brevard.

In 1928, Edward entered Brevard school. In grammar school he made the highest scholastic record of his class, and in 1935 was chosen valedictorian and president of the seventh grade graduating class. In high school, Edward has made an A each month on every subject he has studied, an enviable record for any student. He is active in extracurricular activities, and this year took part in the junior play, "Pollyanna." In the recent superlative election, he was chosen the most studious, the most polite, and the most thoughtful boy in the junior class. This week he was chosen a chief marshal for the commencement exercises.

"Ed" is very active in Scout work, having reached the rank of Star. He is also a very talented pianist, taking part in public recitals and school assembly programs. His other outside interests include film-developing and 4-H Club work. In the latter he has been especially active, and last year won a 4-H club short course at N. C. State College. His present club project is the raising of over five hundred baby chicks. This year he was elected president of the 4-H club for 1938. Edward is also a leader in young people's work in the Brevard Baptist church.

After graduating from Brevard high school, Edward plans to attend Mars Hill College. Depending upon the vocation he chooses, he will, after graduating from Mars Hill, attend either State College or Wake Forest. Whatever profession Edward may choose to enter, we are sure that his winning personality and "go-getter" spirit will enable him to succeed. Here's luck to you. "Ed."

—John Paul Jones.

BREVARD TROUNCES SALUDA 15-11

Although outfit 12 to 7, the Brevard "Blue Devils" defeated Saluda high school on the latter's field Monday. Carlant and "Cowboy" Brown twirled for Brevard, while Jackson was on the receiving end. R. Robert pitched good ball for Saluda. Brown received credit for the Brevard win.

Ashworth, "Blue Devil" third baseman, obtained 2 hits out of 4, and N. Pace, Saluda outfielder, collected 3 for 4 to lead their respective teams in batting.

—Marshall Teague.

PAUL JONES AND EDWARD GLAZENER CHIEF MARSHALS FOR COMMENCEMENT

By virtue of their scholastic record of all A's, Paul Jones and Edward Glazener were elected to act as chief marshals at the commencement exercises to be held next week. The other marshals, also chosen on the basis of scholarship, are Lillian Zachary, Jeanette Austin, Helen Fulbright, Garland Williams, Pendleton Banks, John Walker, and Tom Galloway.

—Edna Fulton.

HERE AND THERE

I don't know what's the matter with me lately; it must be the ham actor I am—or ham and eggs. Speaking of ham and eggs, how do you like cocoonut pie? Now cocoonut pie is—but say! I'm here to give you the news not a menu. That's me! I have a one track mind, but it gets thrown off the track when pie is mentioned. The menu—I mean the column.

That big noise you heard Wednesday night was the senior play going over with a bang. And I tell you, if you missed it, you missed the loudest bang that ever happened in Brevard. I thank you.

There's a new moon over the old mill, and it's shining for "Humps" and Beatsie. Ain't love grand?

Ray Hileman is just as sweet as a June bride huh, Una Lee? I wonder, I wonder.

"Cowboy," let me congratulate you on lasting through the softball tournament. You are the first umpire to last the whole tournament. You also have my—may I mention the fact that the seniors won?

"Chick" are you still looking for Emma Lou?

"Ollie" hold those boys' coats while they do the work, or can you?

"Scotty" and "Smarth" that makes one and a half, don't it?

"John" D. what's the matter with your bat?

"Mary Alice," take your toys and go home.

"Bershak," you better start saying good-bye to Zella May now so as to have plenty of time.

Miss Jarvis says to knock on her door so the mayor can hear it. Don't be a piker with your noise.

What! No seniors made the honor roll this month?

Few, what you need is a pair of roller skates and somebody to hold you up.

How about the flat tire?

Grady B., what makes your hair so curly?

Doyle D. are you still flying blind? Oh! I was just checking up.

Well, here I go, but I will return next week with glad tidings of the close of school. I'm going to get a piece of pie. Wonder if my credit is good.

No!

Well, it was a good idea anyway, while it lasted.

—"Jug" Walden.

EASTER FOOD SALE WILL BE ALL DAY SATURDAY

An Easter food sale will be held at Picklesimer's drug store on Saturday, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning, sponsored by ladies of the Methodist church. Calves, pies, Easter eggs and a varied assortment of eatables for the Easter dinner will be on sale.

John's Rock CCC Camp Will Be Used By Balsam Workers

Work is going forward at John's Rock CCC camp, with the view of transferring the Balsam Grove camp to that location.

The old Bent Creek camp equipment is being moved from the Mills River section to John's Rock, and the transfer of enrollees will be made sometime within the next few weeks.

John's Rock was one of the first camps erected in Western Carolina, and was abandoned in January 1936, after the specific work which the enrollees started had been completed. The Balsam Grove outfit has been split into two units, with a side camp of 50 men stationed at the old F-25 camp in Haywood county. By moving the F-14 enrollees of John's Rock the Sunburst F-25 camp and its companion outfit will be closer together, and work of the two units can be carried on with greater efficiency.

Both units are continuing work on the Tennessee Gap highway which will tap the Great Smoky Mountain scenic drive, and at the same time carrying on their work of fire protection and reforestation.

Captain George S. Obeare, of Atlanta, Ga., is in charge of construction at John's Rock. He has been in the service for over two years, and has had charge of several camps. He was recently promoted from the rank of lieutenant to captain for his outstanding work in the CCC.

Effort is being made by the Brevard

Chamber of Commerce to have the federal government leave the Balsam Grove camp property intact, and allocated to this section as a tourist camp, under supervision of the local civic group.

Pet Coon Killed by Mistaken Neighbor

"Rusty," a pet coon belonging to Hale Sizarard, was accidentally shot and killed Monday night in attempting to free himself through a screen window in a neighbor's house.

The coon had broken out of his customary night lodging in a cage at the Sizarard home some time in the night Monday, and wandered to the home of a neighbor, presumably hunting for the protection of his own home. He had found his way into the neighbor house in some way, and while attempting to escape through a window, the neighbor, mistaking the animal for a suspicious night prowler, shot at and killed him.

The coon had been in the Sizarard family as a pet for three years, since its baby stage. The animal had endeared himself to the entire family, to whom his death was the cause of real grief. He delighted in playing with the children and the dog and cats on the place.
