COLLEGE ELEVEN IN SEASON'S FIRST WIN

Wofford Freshmen Prove Easy Foe For Christenbury's Charging Linesmen

(By J. B. Daniels)

The Brevard College Tornado slated up its first win of the year against Wofford Freshman here Friday 34-0. It was the first home game of the year for Brevard.

Tom Hemphill, flashy triple back paved the way for the five Brevard touchdowns as he passed to Taggart for three of them, to Proctor for another, and personally accounted for the first tally with a twenty yard gallop around end.

The first score came early in the first period after Brevard had kicked off to Wofford. Tacking the ball on their own thirty yard line, the Tornadoes started a march down field that was climaxed by Hemphill skirting right end for twenty yards and the score.

The second score came a few minutes later as Hemphill passed to Taggart, who ran forty yards to register. Hemphill added the extra points from placement in each case. After a scoreless second period during which time Brevard's lineup was sprinkled with reserves, the fireworks started again in the third with two more tallies being pushed across in quick succession.

Both of the third period tallies came as the result of passes; one to Proctor who took the toss on the twenty yard stripe and ran over that last chalk line untouched. Taggart took another toss a few moments later and picked his way through a widely scattered field to score after a fifty yard run.

The fifth touchdown came early in the final period and was similar to the fourth one with Taggart receiving, Hemphill tossing. Hemphill missed the try for point on this one, making it four for five for the afternoon, all from placement.

At this point the reserves were rushed back into the game and the rest of the afternoon was played in the center of the field with neither team threatening.

Jackson and Stepp were the stand-outs in the Brevard line with Mitchell cracking out tackles that could be heard all over the field for the time that he was in the game. Johnson, blocking back took out men time after time to make gains possible that would otherwise have gone for losses.

Vaughan, fullback and Painter, tackled the game but hopelessly outclassed Baby Bulldogs.

With an open date for this week-end, much time is being spent in ironing out faults evident in the past two contests and installing a new series of plays for the conference opener against Bowling Springs at Shelby October 15.

Wray Lewis showed so much promise in the game against Wofford for the few minutes that the coaches plan to experiment with him during the next two weeks. A tall rangy lad with a pair of ham like hands, he has been catching everything resembling a pass thrown at him for the past weeks.

Albert Shuford, first backfield substitute, is also being given a great deal of attention at the tall back post and promises to make it hot for the other candidates for a starting position in the Bowling Springs tilt.

All Counties Asked To Participate In Raleigh State Fair

County farm agents, boards and commissioners, and superintendents of education all over North Carolina have been invited to prepare county progress exhibits for the State Fair, October 11-15, according to an announcement from F. H. Jeter, agricultural editor at State College.

At the fair, the counties will be given space to feature the achievements they have made in education, rural life, and industry, said Mr. Jeter, who has been named superintendent of the county progress department.

He stressed the desire of the management to have the exhibits present a true and well balanced picture of the work that is being done in these three outstanding fields, and said that the way an exhibit is prepared will count more than the quality of individual articles that may be shown.

In the field of education, he suggested, may be shown the new progressive ideas and accomplishments in the public schools that have been fostered by county or city departments of education.

In the field of rural life, improved farm and home methods should be displayed to show definite accomplishments on the land by rural men and women, boys and girls, along with some of the major programs that have received the support of all farm people.

In the field of industrial development should be exhibited the progress made in the major industries and commercial development of the county, whether in mining, manufacturing, lumbering, catering to tourists, or other permanent enterprises.

The winners of the first four prizes will probably receive $1,750 in cash.
