CHAPL PROGRAM GIVEN

The Rosman high school assembled in chapel, December 14 and were entertained by a program given by the senior class.

The following program was given: Devotional, Della McCall; song, "Silent Night," by school; play entitled "At the Stroke of Twelve," characters: Liza, a colored servant, Miriam Stewart; Eileen, a young girl in her teens; Eva Israel; Miss Briggs, Eileen's aunt; Lula Cassell; George Baker, young man in love with Eileen; P. L. Nicholson; ghost, impersonated by George.

The scene takes place in the home of Miss Briggs. There is a severe storm raging outside. Ghosts had been known to roam in the home on the night of December 14 because old man Jones hanged himself in the house.

Miss Briggs is opposed to the marriage of Eileen and George and tells Eileen she will disinherit her if she marries George.

George impersonates a ghost which appears in the house at twelve o'clock. He frightens Miss Briggs into letting Eileen marry George providing they will come and live with her.

The program was greatly enjoyed by all.

ADULT EDUCATION

Adult education is a new name for an old thing. Some people think that after your school days are over your education is finished but this is not true because you learn something most every day, that you did not know the day before. Correspondence schools and many other methods are used as instruments for the after-education of persons whose schooling has ended.

What is adult education? It is a process of learning on the initiative of the individual, seriously undertaken as a supplement to some primary occupation. This includes not only the man in a shop but also assistants in the university.

The range of adult education in general sense includes every thing that an individual does for their own education after the period of schooling.

Adult education is carried on in many ways. Some of the most present day educational instruments are: university extension, evening schools, correspondence schools and many others. The American Library Association has taken a commendable leadership in this field of education.

No one ought to regard himself after his graduation as intellectually dead or sterile. This ought to be a commencement of a "personally directed education" by one's self. The possibility of continued education ought to be a continued stimulus to individuals. In this connection it may be said that the function of the adult education movement, applied to everybody, no matter what his previous education, may be summarized in a phrase, "to keep intellectually alive."

For each of us the significance of adult education is a need so long as there is life. We must keep open minds, develop wide and persistent interests, and utilize the opportunities and facilities for continued education. We must remember, as in all education, that the responsibility is on us. The things we decide to do exclude us from all the other things we might do. Time becomes the most precious gift. Pastime loses its meaning. Life becomes a conscious self-direction for the highest ends of human existence.

BASKET BALL GIRLS MEET

The basket ball girls met in Miss Swain's room before Christmas for the purpose of electing a cheer leader for the basket ball season.

Several girls were nominated and May Winchester was elected from the group.

Miss Rogers is going to assist in the cheer leading and teach several new yells.

Both girls and boys play the Brevard girls and boys Friday night, January 6th. We hope to have a large number out to the game.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Well, here it is after Christmas and I believe Santa Claus must have come to see everybody, especially Mr. Thomas who has a new suit and lots of the girls got new permanents. Miriam Stewart got a husband for Christmas so she is now Mrs. Alfred Galloway.

It was strange that Mr. Thomas didn't want any candy Monday. He must have had too much during Christmas.

So Norman has started back to school. He likes to play ball, and he likes a certain young lady in addition to his school work. I wonder if Louise O. could have anything to do with it.

Eva you had better play well Friday night or you will lose that dollar bet. Sylvia has started a new hair style—wearing peppermint candy in her hair. Louise has been throwing candy again too.

John R. has a lovely sun tan. Did you enjoy your week in Florida? Blub! glub! put some more candy in your mouth Frank W. and you can talk better.

Wonder why Lane likes to sleep when he goes for a ride.

I wonder whom Elizabeth's escort was the other night from the party. Could you give me any information, Bert? Well, Annie B. who sent you that scarf for Christmas? Oh I see, just a friend.

Helen B. has a pretty new dress. I wonder if Santa Claus brought it.

"Happy New Year" and same back "atcha." This theme is simply "de-riving" John R. "krazy." Now who said that. Now that Christmas is over, next comes spring fever with its many broken hearts. Ah! Ah!

The first resolution on Rick's list is to drink one coca cola a day (off whom he wonders). The first one on Bill M.'s list is to go see his girl every night (which girl)? Yodel-lody-hoo—well, well, Mr. Thomas can really yodel. Who would have thought it?

W.N.C. Best Spot In United States Says Mrs. Shamo

Editor The Times:
 My two sons, Guy and Clark Osborn, and myself returned this week from a 10 weeks' trip to the west coast, stopping over en route at different cities and towns distributing Brevard folders at the different Chamber of Commerce offices.

Leaving here on the eve of October 10, visiting our former home in Illinois a few days, then to St. Louis for a day, through Kansas, Denver and Colorado Springs. There we saw Buffalo Bill's grave and Will Rogers' sun shrine on Cheyenne mountain, stopping over en route two or three days sightseeing.

The road was blocked the night before to Yellowstone Park and Pikes Peak on account of snow, but we visited Estes Park, then on to Salt Lake City, where we attended the broadcast of 300 voices at Mormon Tabernacle on Sunday, then through Idaho apple picking, eastern Oregon along the beautiful Columbia river drive into Portland. Then across the river into Vancouver, Wash., back through border of California. The trip was lovely all along the beautiful redwood forest to Eureka (where "Valley of Giants" was filmed), then to San Francisco and chop suey, through Yosemite National Park and Sequoia trees to Los Angeles, Santa Monica and Malibu Beach.

At Hollywood we attended church at Pasadena, Calif., then on to San Diego, where a pal of one of the boys was in the Navy base studying mortuary. We spent two afternoons with him, but were sorry we didn't know Walter Sinsard was there for we would have been glad to visit him.

We then went on across the border to Old Mexico, Tia Juana and Agua Caliente, taking snap shots all along the way. From there we went to San Bernardino, up Mt. Arrowhead, where the "Stars" have winter homes, through Snowballs, down to Arrowhead Lake and Baldwin Lake, where we saw hundreds of black geese, wild ducks, frozen in the backwaters. Then we journeyed through lower Nevada, Arizona, the Grand Canyon and into New Mexico and through Texas, the New Orleans French quarters and the cemeteries of lower Mississippi at Biloxi. We stopped at Mobile, Ala., Pensacola and Panama City, Fla., a few days, then down the coast to Tampa. We spent Christmas week at Lake Worth, Fla., our former home.

Leaving the following Monday, we traveled back through western Florida, up to Atlanta, Ga., and home via Anderson and Pickens, S. C., to Brevard. We covered over 18,000 miles, through 22 states and Mexico. The highest point at Tennessee Pass, the Continental divide, 10,424 feet, to the lowest near Death Valley, 150 miles below sea level.

It was a wonderful trip and we enjoyed every moment of it, but are glad to be back home in North Carolina, ready for the summer.

Mrs. Golda Shamo
 Brevard, R-2.
