POOR INVESTOR?

ADOLF HITLER, Germany's leader, is said to be only Nazi leader who has not sent most of his money out of his country to invest as precaution against loss.

Hitler's "partners" or lesser lights, including all of his Chief Nazis sent their money to other nations, as follows: Marshal Goering, $7,507,000; Goebbels, $8,990,000; Ribbentrop, $9,740,000; Hess, $4,007,500; Streicher, $4,000,000; Himmler, $2,637,500; Ley, $1,891,000.

The Nazi leaders anticipated a war, and whether they plan to skip the country and take up abode in a foreign land should the fortunes of war turn against them, or whether it is from fear of their funds being confiscated by the iron fist of the dictator, is cause for speculation.

1938 TAXES SHOW BETTER COLLECTION

Steps Being Taken By Authorities To Force Payment Of Delinquent Levies

Tax books for 1939 were turned over to Collector Edwin Morgan by order of the county commissioners here Monday after the 1938 report had been made.
