Preparations are being made to entertain 75 boys between the ages of 7 and 17, in a "camp that is NOT a country club nor a hotel but a place for a REAL vacation," the attractive folder states.

The camp is unique in that it is operated on the "free hand" style, with boys having supervision, but not methodically planned work or play. Horseback riding, swimming, boating, and handicrafts are featured, with nature study and activities in the outdoors to be stressed. Food is to be wholesome and "countrified," the prospectus states, with products of the farm and orchard on the property to be utilized.

This is the second year's operation of the camp. Last year between 15 and 20 boys were enrolled, due to the lateness in getting plans started for the camp's operation.
