British Claim Nazis Landed On Crete Disguised As New Zealanders

Latest developments in the European war situation focus attention on the British-Greek island base of Crete, which Nazi troops invaded last Tuesday, pouncing on the island from transport planes, gliders and parachutes in a surprise landing. It is estimated that around 12,000 Germans, many of them disguised as New Zealanders, swooped down in the spectacular aerial invasion which lasted from dawn to dusk.

Summer School Will Open At Institution On Monday, June 16

Dr. E. J. Coltrane, president of Brevard College, yesterday released a statement emphasizing the fact that the college will be operated here as usual next year. He said that recent discussion relative to moving the college might lead some to believe that it would not be operated here next year and he wished to dispel that belief. Dr. Coltrane's statement follows:

"Although there has been considerable discussion relative to moving Brevard College to another location, it should be understood now that the college will be in operation at Brevard next year on the same basis as in previous years. Many of us believe that it will be possible to maintain Brevard College as a standard junior college at the present location even if it should be attached to a larger institution located elsewhere. Freshmen now in the college may continue their work next year with the expectation of being graduated in 1942, and with full expectation of having their credits accepted for junior class standing in any good four-year college or university in this territory.

"The regular summer school will open on Monday, June 16, and will be in operation for a period of nine weeks. The fall semester will open September 6. Inquiries and applications now being received indicate a good summer school and a full enrollment for the fall semester. The present faculty, with two or three exceptions, will be in charge of the institution next year.

"At the next meeting of the Western North Carolina Conference of the Methodist church the term of six members of the board of trustees will expire. These positions will be filled either by the present members or by new members who may be elected by the Conference. The college administration is eager for the public to know that the college will be operated in the future on progressive policies."

Hamlin, president of the Brevard Chamber of Commerce, reported here yesterday that the membership drive launched here early this week by the organization has met with splendid success so far and that a large number of the business houses and individuals of the town and county have signed up for the coming year. He was of the opinion that the drive could be completed by Saturday of this week. In an appeal to those who will be contacted by members of the drive committee, Mr. Hamlin asked that they take into full consideration the importance of helping carry on the work of the promotional organization here which is ever working for the general benefit of the town and county.
