Hospital Patients To Do Own Sewing

PUEBLO, Colo. — The women at Colorado state hospital make their own dresses and bed linens—and therein lie statistics.

After hospital officials figured the amount of material needed for one year they ordered 2,338 bolts. If placed end to end the cloth would reach 64 miles—half way from Pueblo to Denver.

If the women were to sew they needed thread, so 8,400 spools and 330 large cones were ordered. Put the spool thread end to end, it'll go from Pueblo to Kansas City.

Each cone contains 9,600 yards, making a total of enough to reach across the country from New York to San Francisco two and one-half times.
