The community here loses a good neighbor in the passing of Mrs. L. F. Lyday last Sunday. The husband loses a devoted wife and the children a good and loyal mother. It can be truthfully said that she has given her whole life faithfully and successfully for the benefit of her children. With them we wish to rise up and call her blessed. Have you been thinking about a school house site for Brevard? At least five acres should be secured before landed property becomes too valuable—and where will you find it even now? A graded school is one of our necessities that must come, and the sooner our people begin making arrangements for it the better they will be prepared when the time comes to build.

We learn through a dispatch that Chicago wants to operate its own street cars. But just at present it seems the city is not able to run its delivery wagons.

Recalling his own experience as a hunter, it is said that Grover Cleveland refuses to believe a great deal of what he hears about the President's western trip.

There are people hereabouts who are borrowing trouble where there is no necessity—they are wondering what the next generation will do for firewood. Our ancestors were guilty of the same indiscretion—they wondered what their children would do for lights when the supply of pine knots gave out. Apparently we are doing about as well as they did, and future generations will do as well as we are doing.

Girl Weeps Because Pet Calf To Be Sold

RALEIGH.—Louise Reece, 13-year-old, sandy-haired Haywood county 4-H club girl, entered a calf in State 4-H baby beef contest at the State fair.

The calf won the reserve championship—or second to the grand champion—but shortly after the judge's decision was announced, Louise began crying.

Judges thought she was weeping because her entry had taken only second place, but between sobs she told them the real reason—her pet calf, the gentle animal she had fed and watered for 10 months, was going to be sold at auction and then butchered.

Wayne Corpening, Haywood county farm agent and her club leader, took

Transylvanians Speak

By Inquiring Reporter

QUESTION: What stage in your child's life do you consider the most enjoyable and what the most trying?

MRS. D. F. MOORE: "I enjoy them all along from the time they come into the world, and love them all the way through and wouldn't take a million dollars for any one of them. I believe though that the most trying time with children in general is the teen age."

MRS. J. F. ZACHARY: "There is a difference, I think, with every child and with every mother. With mine, I enjoy them more from 11 on through the teen age. They are the most fun at that age. From 6 to 11 or 12 is the most trying age, I think."

MRS. J. B. JONES: "I enjoy them the most from 1 to 5 years. The most trying time is in the teen age."

MRS. CARL McCRARY: "I love them every step of the way. They are the most trying between 7 and 10 years of age. They are mean as — then, but sweet."

MRS. J. S. NICHOLSON: "I enjoy them the most when they are little. The adolescence age is the most trying."

MRS. J. C. WIKE: "Mine have always been a great pleasure to me, with very few trying times except when they were sick."

MRS. M. M. FEASTER: "I've loved and enjoyed my children all the time, but think the most trying stage is when they are small."

MRS. OLIVER ORR: "They are the most trying all through their lives, and also the most enjoyable."

MRS. A. E. HAMPTON: "All babies and young children are mighty sweet. I like children of all ages, but like them better under 12 years of age. They are less troublesome until they reach the adolescence age."
