

Julliette Low, Founder Of Girl Scouts, Was Woman Of Courage

Life Is An Inspiration To All Girls. She Overcame Many Hardships

On Oct. 31, 1860, in Savannah, Ga., a baby girl was born, to Mr. and Mrs. R. Gordon.

This baby girl was to become famous. She was to become known to almost a million girls all over the world, as Julliette Low, the founder of the Girl Scouts in America.

Although Julliette Gordon's childhood was shadowed by the privations of the Civil War, it was far from unhappy.

"Daisy," as she was known by her friends and family, was "ring-leader" with the children, always popular. She improvised games to play, anything from keeping house in the large trees in the yard, to elaborate cross country games and acting out plays.

After Julliette outgrew the little school in Savannah, Ga., she was sent to Virginia for further study and later to New York City.

Like every other young girl, Julliette Gordon dreamed of the day she would make her debut; and like every other young girl she also dreamed of the day she would marry.

She had her debut and soon her "prince charming" appeared. In 1886, she became Mrs. William Low, and went to England to live.

It was on this trip, her honeymoon, the sad accident occurred which was to make her deaf the rest of her life.

However, her indomitable spirit refused to accept defeat in any form. She had a purpose in life and nothing was going to alter that purpose. She led a busy social life, was presented to the Queen, worked at drawing and sculpturing; and even at wrought iron. A young woman of many talents, she was well-fitted for the role she was to later play in the lives of thousands of girls.

She would often visit her home in America, between travels to other countries, including Egypt and India.

As she had no children, her life would have been very lonely, after Mr. Low's sudden death, but fortune smiled on her in the person of Lord Baden-Powell, and at once became intensely interesting in the Scouting movement, giving herself to it completely.

She not only started the movement here in this country, but gave a great deal of help and encouragement to the organization in other countries as well.

All through her life Mrs. Low was keen for adventure, no day was uneventful. Talented, witty,

SWAP-WORK PLAN ROUTS LABOR SHORTAGE ENEMY

Farm labor battalions captured all their objectives at Newport, Carteret County. Twenty farm families of the Crab Point community, led by General R. P. Oglesby, pooled their machinery, their work stock, their labor, their tobacco plants and other things necessary to the success of local farming enterprises and routed the farm labor shortage which attacked their section without warning some weeks ago.

General Oglesby produces Irish potatoes, cabbage, sweet potatoes, tobacco, cotton and hogs. When the enemy attacked, he found himself with two tractors, five head of mules, and practically no labor. He called in Neighbor Bill Williams and made him captain of one tractor outfit. He himself led the other tractor division.

with a great sense of fun, coupled with her love of people, especially young people, taught her a respect for personality and led her to treat everybody, young and old alike, with understanding and consideration.

One of Mrs. Low's outstanding virtues was her love of animals. Most of her pets were waifs and strays she picked up and nursed back to health.

Julliette Low died in January, 1927, in Savannah, Ga., where she was buried, at the age of 67.

A few months after death the Julliette Low Memorial Fund was begun, in her memory. In memory of the intense interest she took in the girls of all nations and her far-reaching belief, the importance of personal friendships among them.

Girls Scout troops and friends of Girl Scouting all over the United States contribute to this Fund every year. It will, as always, continue to be used in the way that seems best for bringing about a better understanding among young people of different countries.

"Where did you get the ten bucks?"
"I got it from Jack."
"I thought he was pretty tight."
"That's how I got it."

"How are you getting along with your wife?"
"Oh, everything I tell her goes."
"Is that so?"
"Yeah, it goes all over town in a few minutes."

HOME CANNING AID GIVEN HOUSEWIVES

New Information Service Established In A&P Stores In This Area

A special information service to help housewives make 1943 the biggest home-canning year in history has been established in A & P Food stores in this area, it was announced today.

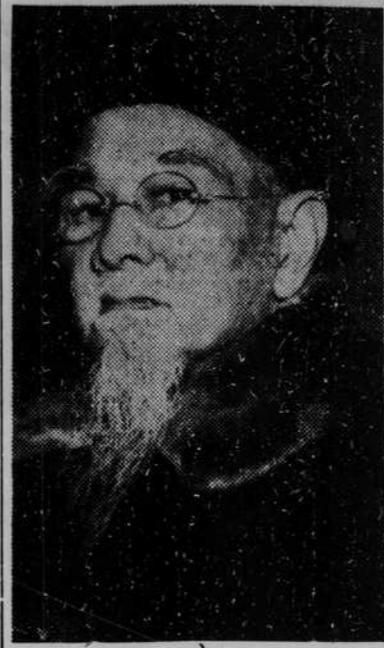

This new service is designed to answer the questions of many women who plan to can, pickle, or preserve fresh fruits and vegetables this summer. Free leaflets containing easy-to-follow, approved methods of home canning will be available in the company's stores. Facts on how many pounds of the fresh fruit or vegetable it takes to put up a certain quantity of canned fruit as well as information on when each commodity is available in sufficient quantity to warrant canning also will be furnished in the stores and in newspaper advertisements.

Aiding War Effort

Housewives will be contributing to the war effort materially by doing home canning especially at periods when fresh fruits and vegetables are available in the greatest quantities. Canning at such peak periods of production will result in the conservation of large quantities of these perishable foods that otherwise might be wasted. At this time, too, better buys will be available to consumers. Housewives also will find their shopping under point rationing to be simpler next winter if they have home-canned food with which to supplement their daily menus.

Because millions of women are planning to do home canning for the first time this summer and other millions plan to increase their canning both governmental

PLANNING ISN'T NEW

THE way a lot of people are talking these days, you'd think planning is something new.

But anybody who's ever run a farm or a factory knows that if you don't plan, you can't get the most out of what you have to work with.

To plan properly, the farmer has to know about crops, soils, seasons, tools, and stock; and the man operating a factory has to know about machines, markets, science, and engineering.

Yet for all this specialized knowledge which each of these activities requires, the managers of both farm and factory have much in common in their planning. They have the same problems—to mention a few—of employment and taxes, of costs and a fair profit, of setting aside reserves for a "rainy day."

And they have the same objective in their planning—to do everything they can for their country today, and, tomorrow, to make a fair living through greater service to their fellow Americans. General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

"How did I know you'd need bombs?"

"MORE than half the bombs this country makes exist by what you might call an 'accident.' 'Some accident, too! I saw it happen."

"It was 1935. We research workers at Esso were trying many things with petroleum to see what else we could learn about it. And up came a process for synthetic toluol.

"Well, you need toluol to make TNT. But coal-tar was providing all the toluol the country needed—then.

"However...all the toluol you could get from coal-tar would make far less than half the TNT we're using now! The other half is made by that Esso process perfected back in 1935.

"Now...I didn't know then that you'd need bombs, and neither did you. And I can hear a lot of people say 'Boy was that discovery a lucky thing!'...

"But I don't call it luck. I call it the American idea at work. We hit on that process because free American people expect so much that American companies have to learn everything they can about new and better methods just to stay out front in business.

"If this war didn't prove anything else, it would prove that nothing like America ever existed anywhere before.

What other idea ever did so many people so much good in peacetime? What other idea ever turned out so much might so fast in time of war?"
