Faculty Composed of 28 Members. More Students To Enroll Today

The twentieth annual National Red Cross Aquatic school opened yesterday at Camp Carolina with an enrollment of approximately 150 students from 15 southern and eastern states and with one student from Parana, Brazil.

Harry Kenning, director of the school, is expecting at least 25 more students to enroll today and this number will bring the total registration up to the average for the past 10 years.

The school's faculty is composed of 28 members and the courses of instruction have been altered somewhat to fit wartime emergency training needs in accident prevention, first aid and in water front activities, including swimming, diving and canoeing.

"We are placing special stress on home, farm and industry accident prevention to reduce the loss of manhours," Director Kenning said. And the water instruction is designed to fit the needs of a nation at war, he explained.

To conserve power and because of materials involved, no water pageant will be given this year. However, an aquade will be featured and the public will be invited to see this colorful event. As yet, though, no date has been set.

States represented by students who have already registered include the Carolinas, Virginia, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, Ohio, New Jersey, Pennsylvania. Alfio Veria is from Brazil.

National instructors of prominence are included in the faculty. Charles E. Mix, of Anderson, S. C., is assistant director of the school. Wally Van Carson, assistant national director of Red Cross canoeing, will serve as an instructor and give demonstrations. Dr. Ira Mervins, National Red Cross director of home and farm accident prevention, will attend the school.

Other instructors are: T. C. McDaniel, of the National staff who will teach first aid; Sam Jones, national staff, first aid and lifesaving instructor; Emil Lewis, national staff, swimming and lifesaving instructor; Charles Russell, national staff, canoeing and lifesaving; Dr. W. Sale Of Beer On Sunday In County Is Prohibited By An Order County Commissioners

CHIEF SMITH SAYS FIRE DEPARTMENT NEEDS NEW TRUCK

Urges Town Board To Buy Another Truck And More Equipment Now

The Brevard Fire department should have another truck, more hose and other firefighting equipment, Chief John Smith told members of the town board last Monday night.

During the past 15 or 20 years Brevard has been extremely fortunate in not having a major fire, Chief Smith said, and warned that if a serious fire were to break out the town's present equipment is not adequate.

He said that he could purchase a truck and make a modern firefighter of it for around $3,000. The board agreed to give the suggestion consideration and also agreed to purchase at once 300 feet of hose.

Alderman Mose Macfie was elected as mayor pro tem, and Harold E. Norwood, who is already town electrical inspector, was also appointed as building inspector, succeeding the late E. C. Henderson.

To Become Effective July 1. Board Is Now Considering New Budget

Starting July 1 it will be unlawful to sell beer in Transylvania county, except inside of the corporate limits of towns, from 11:30 o'clock on Saturday nights until 7 o'clock the following Monday mornings.

At their regular meeting Monday, the commissioners passed a resolution, banning Sunday beer sales. "Now, therefore, be it resolved: That from and after the first day of July, 1943, it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to sell or offer for sale any beer in Transylvania county from 11:30 on each Saturday night until 7 o'clock the following Monday morning.

"That this resolution shall be in full force and effect in all portions of Transylvania county not embraced in the corporate limits of any municipality therein."

COUNTY, TOWN BOARDS ASKED TO CO-OPERATE

Representatives of Woman's Civic Club Appeared Before Boards

NEED IS STRESSED

Representatives of the Woman's Civic club here appeared before the county commissioners and the Brevard board of aldermen Monday, stressed the need for a town and county library and asked both governing bodies to appropriate $200 each so that such a library might be established.

Mrs. Oliver Orr, president of the club and Mrs. H. R. Bobst, chairman of the club's educational committee, appeared before the commissioners Monday afternoon and Mrs. Bobst met with the town fathers that night.

They pointed out that the UDC has given the town and county a splendid library service since 1913 and that this service could be greatly expanded by converting the facilities of the library into a combination town and county institution, free for public use.

By doing this, they said, the county can receive $1,100 during the next year from a special state library appropriation.

The club representatives agreed that if the town and county would participate, their organization would assume the responsibility of raising additional funds from private contributions.

"Our county should have a free public library, equipped with thousands of good books of all kinds," one of them said.

They also emphasized the fact
