

Every Person In County Is Urged To Work Or Fight At Patriotic Meeting Here Mon.

large crowd present, there being but a few vacant seats in the courtroom. "This is the first war since we won our independence in which we are fighting for our very existence," he asserted. "Germany and Japan are out to exterminate us. They have set out to establish their ideologies and rule the world or ruin it. They are cruel, ruthless and efficient enemies. They have made harsh sacrifices to prepare; Germany forewent food and renounced its personal liberty to get ready; Japan is preparing for a 100 years' war, if necessary, to win."

As Mayor, Verne Clement endorsed the movement "100 per cent" and pledged his cooperation in reaching its objective.

Farm Workers Needed Carl Allison, county commissioner, expressed a fear that people would suffer more in the future from war privations than they had in the past. He, too, thought it would not be necessary to compel people in this county to work and he spoke of the urgent need for more labor on the farms.

The words of the Governor's proclamation directed at loafers, County Agent Julian Glazener said were a "stinging indictment." But, he said, they are a small fraction of our populace. He suggested that these few could be reached by the joint efforts of the farm committee and the governor's anti-loafing organization.

After expressing his appreciation of the efforts in this connection of Ed M. Anderson, publisher of The Times, Mr. Straus presented C. M. Douglas, president of the local chamber of commerce. Mr. Douglas said he thought our people were loyal, since they "always come through" and he spoke of their achievements in sundry war efforts. He thought our few loafers could be enticed to go to work, but if not they should be reported to the executive committee. Mr. Douglas said he was proud to tell people wherever he went of the fine war record Transylvania county had made.

The meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem, led by the Ecusta band, which also played on the courthouse lawn while the crowd was gathering. On the executive committee of the anti-loafing organization in the county besides Mr. Straus are: Ralph Ramsey, Mayor Verne Clement, Carl Allison, J. A. Glazener, C. M. Douglas and Ed Anderson.

A FOOD FOR VICTORY FILM SHOWN HERE

Farmers and other citizens are urged to see a Food-for-Victory picture, which will be shown at the Co-Ed Theatre Thursday night and Friday night at the Clemson theatre. The title of the picture is "20 Fighting Men," and it is said to be thrilling, dramatic and inspiring.

The picture was procured by the B&B Feed and Seed company for exhibition here to foster and maintain interest in the food production campaign. While it was produced by the Purina Mills, Willis Brittain, manager of the B&B company, said it was free of any vestige of advertising and was instructive throughout.

Cryolite Controls Vegetable Insects

Cryolite can be used as a stomach poison for a number of insects now attacking Victory Garden vegetables, says J. Maron Maxwell, Extension Entomologist at N. C. State College.

Rotenone is scarce and its use is restricted, therefore cryolite is recommended for controlling garden insects. According to Maxwell, it is slightly poisonous and leafy vegetables receiving applications of cryolite should be thoroughly washed before being eaten.

Cryolite is highly recommended for the control of the Mexican bean beetle. It can be used on snap beans before the pods are set and also on lima beans.

According to the entomologist, the dusting of cryolite on tomatoes will be found to be effective in the control of tomato fruit and horn worms, and also for flea beetles. It is also recommended for the control of spotted and striped cucumber beetles on cantaloupes, cucumbers, and squash. It is the best known method of control for the pickle worm, which enters the fruits of these vegetables late in the season.

General Electric advertisement: Having Trouble Getting Help? So are we. Like you, we're faced with the biggest production job in our history. And, like you, we've lost many of the men who used to help us. Yet that's only part of the story. Every day, on farm and factory, there's something new to test the skill of those running the business. Not only getting help, but—to mention a few others—rising costs, making a fair profit, and setting aside reserves for a rainy day. Essentially, those problems are the same for farm and factory, though they may at times differ in size. But it is that thing called "management," that peculiarly American ability to think through problems no matter how tough, that is helping to see us through today. It is this skill in management that farmers and businessmen have most in common, a skill which insures the realization of our determination to produce all that's needed for our country today, and, tomorrow, to make a fair living through greater service to our fellow Americans.
