ODE TO THE BIG MEN

Many years ago there appeared regularly in certain daily papers a jingle by Walt Mason, who worked into his cadences much philosophy. Only a few weeks ago, Mr. J. C. Wike dropped into our office and handed us a couple of them, one of which is reprinted below. It was entitled "The Big Men" and is as timely today as it was when it was written.

The big men dare and big men do; they dream great dreams; which they make come true. They bridge the rivers and they link the plains, and gird the land with their railway trains; they make the desert break forth in bloom, they send the cataract through a flume to turn the wheels of a thousand mills and bring the coin to a nation's tills; the big men work and the big men plan, and, helping themselves, help their fellow man. And the cheap men yelp at their carriage wheels, as the small dogs bark at the big dog's heels. The big men sow while the cheap men sleep, and when they go to their fields to reap, the cheap men cry, "We must have share of all the grain they harvest there! These men are pirates who sow and reap and plan and build while we are asleep! We'll legislate till they lose their hair! We'll pass new laws that will strip them bare! We'll tax them right and we'll tax them left, till of their plunder they are bereft; we'll show these men that we all despise their skill; their courage and enterprise!" So the small men yap at the big men's heels; the fake reformers with uplift spools, the four-eyed dreamers with theories fine, which brings them maybe three cents a line, the tinhorn grafters who always yearn to collar coin that they do not earn. And the big men sigh as they go their way; they'll balk at the whole blamed thing some day!

AN EXCELLENT COOK

This column nominates Mr. Sam Allison, widely known and veteran meat market operator here, as being the best cook in this section of the state, especially when it comes to cooking squirrel, coon or other wild meat.

But if a person can possibly manage it, he or she will be better off and will aid further in the war effort by not cashing in on the bonds until they mature.

Mrs. C. C. Hall Died At Lake Toxaway

Mrs. C. C. Hall, 63, died at her home at Lake Toxaway last Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock, following a week's illness and a period of declining health. Funeral arrangements had not been made late yesterday afternoon, awaiting the arrival of a son in service, stationed in Colorado. The service will be held at the Lake Toxaway Baptist church, probably on Saturday.

Surviving are the husband and eight children. The five sons are: Fred and Verner Hall, Lake Toxaway, Harrison Hall, Norfolk, Va. Robert Hall in overseas service, and John Hall Colorado Springs, Colo.; three daughters, Mrs. Otto Wuerstle, New York City, Mrs. William Bakos, Norfolk, Mrs. Arthur Barton Brevard; three brothers Jesse and L. E. Cash, of this county, Freeman Cash, Asheville; two sisters, Mrs. C. W. Henderson and Mrs. Walter Hinkle, this county; and a number of grandchildren.

Osborne-Simpson funeral home have charge of arrangements.

NOT A DIME

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., whose super-salesmanship put the $15,000,000 Third War Loan drive over the top, didn't even contribute a dime to it.

But no harsh judgment is in order.

He couldn't have for love nor money.

Neither could W. A. Julian, Treasurer of the United States. A 1789 law expressly forbids the Secretary of the Treasury and the Treasurer of the United States from buying or owning any government bonds or securities while in office.

Julian's signature appears on United States currency.

CASHING IN BONDS

Speaking of war bond buyers, this column was surprised to learn the other day that more bonds are cashed in at the Brevard post office than are sold! We do not have any official figures, but we understand this is a fact!

It seems that a good many people who buy bonds from some other source do not want to return to that same source and get the cash and since it is convenient, they come to the post office here.

This very action alone shows that the persons themselves feel that cashing in bonds is not patriotic, and it really isn't in one sense of the word. Of course the government realizes that emergencies do arise and of course these bond buyers are at least lending their money to Uncle Sam for a short time, maybe as long as they can spare it.

PAPER BAG SHORTAGE

Local grocers have reported an acute shortage in kraft paper bags of all sizes. Shoppers are asked therefore, not to ask that such items as bread and cereals be put in bags. It would tend to relieve the shortage, it was pointed out, if people would preserve and return paper bags to the stores. There is no indication at present when the supply of bags will be larger, it was said.
