LEND-LEASE BIG AID TO SOVIETS, ROOSEVELT SAYS

President Declares U. S. Goods Playing Major Role In The War

Washington — President Roosevelt has credited lend-lease equipment from the United States with playing a major role in the savage Red army offensive which is hurling the Germans out of Russia, and in the devastation of German war centers from the skies.

It will be an equally big factor in the Anglo-American plunge into Europe in this year of "decisive actions," the president told congress in his 13th report on lend-lease since the program was started in March, 1941.

In 33 months, to Dec. 1, 1943, lend-lease aid to the allies has totalled $18,608,000,000, the report shows, reaching its peak last August and tapering off somewhat since.

Big Order To Reds Russia received through last October a grand total of 7000 planes, 3,500 tanks and 195,000 motor vehicles which were "used effectively in the Red army's advances in the Ukraine and White Russia," the president declared. In addition the Soviets were sent 343,000 tons of wheat and flour, 277,000 tons of sugar, 441,000 tons of fats and oils, 136,000 tons of dried fruits and vegetables, 38,000 tons of dried eggs and 33,500 tons of butter.

Almost half of the aid to the British has been in munitions... Lend-lease planes and bombs are scorching German-held Europe daily.
