Transylvania Is First Western County To Get Semi-Mobile Unit

IS LATEST DISCOVERY

All Transylvanians over 15 years of age are expected to have free chest examinations during the week of May 28-June 3 when a mass X-ray clinic will be conducted in the Hayes Motor company building here and at the Rosman high school under the sponsorship of the Transylvania County Medical society, the county public health department and the Transylvania Better Health association.

The semi-mobile unit, furnished by the state sanatorium, will be brought to the county during that period and will be operated by one of the sanatorium technicians, it is announced.

H. L. Satterwhite, of the state sanatorium, stated at a meeting in the public health office here last week that Transylvania was the first county west of Hickory to be offered the mobile clinic and this was due to the interest shown in public health here by civic organizations and the recently organized Better Health group.

It is explained that this X-ray method is the latest development for discovery of chest conditions, including tuberculosis, and that examinations are made in 30 seconds and no undressing is necessary.

Whenever an X-ray shows a presence of a respiratory defect, a confidential report is mailed to the individual with recommendations for further examinations.

Heavy Frosts Did Only Slight Damage In Town, County

Because of the dry season, the heavy frosts last week end and the first two mornings this week did only slight damage to the apples and the early garden crops in Transylvania county, Julian A. Glazener, county agent, reports today.

"The near-freezing frosts would have done considerable damage if the ground had been wet," the county agent explained.

Believed to have been hit the hardest were the flower gardens around the town and county, the strawberries and the tomato plants. The county agent also stated that a warm rain would certainly do a world of good right now.

Dates For Graduation Exercises At High Schools And College Are Announced

Schools in Brevard and Transylvania county will close on Saturday, May 31, according to an announcement today by Supt. J. B. Jones.

Final commencement exercises at Brevard and Rosman high schools will be held on Friday night, May 30, and the baccalaureate sermons will be delivered on Sunday night, May 25.

With the addition of the 12th grade to the county school system last year, no graduation exercises were held at Brevard or Rosman. According to Principal R. T. Kimzey, there are 65 members of the graduating class here, and 18 are finishing at Rosman, Principal E. F. Tilsen announces.

Clerk Says System Should Relieve Parking Situation And Bring In Revenue

Coin-in-the-slot, meter-measured parking will begin in the business section of Brevard tomorrow (Friday) morning at 9 o'clock. Instructions as to how to operate the meters are given in an ad appearing in this issue.

The meters have been installed on both sides of the street from the Farmers Federation on East Main to Smith's Service station on West Main and from the jail to the post office on Broad street.

Purpose of the new system, as explained by City Clerk T. H. Barker, is to relieve the parking situation and to raise revenue as a means of averting a hike in the tax rates. It has been estimated that the meters will pay for themselves in eight months and if they prove unsatisfactory for any reason the company agrees to remove them without cost to the town. Until they are paid for, the town receives 25 per cent of what they take in.

Fully Automatic

The meters are fully automatic and using them is very simple. All the motorist has to do is to park his car in front of the meter and put a coin in the slot at the right hand side of the meter. If he wants to park for only 12 minutes, he deposits a penny. Two pennies entitle him to 24 minutes parking and so on up to ten cents for two hours, the limit. Overtime parkers will receive tickets, the city clerk
