Pfohl Says Enrollment Is Ahead Of Last Year; Noted Artist On Faculty

COPPER WIRE STRUNG

James Christian Pfohl, director, announced yesterday that there would be weekly broadcasts of concerts from the Transylvania Music School-Camp, which opens for its fourth season today.

Three concerts will be given weekly, with the first scheduled for the evening of July 4 at 7:30. After that there will be concerts on Tuesday evenings at 8:00 o'clock, Friday evenings at 7:30 and Sunday afternoons at 4 o'clock. The first 25 minutes of the Friday night programs will be broadcast over WWNC and WBT with the possibility, the director said, that later other stations in the Columbia network would be added. Mr. Pfohl stressed the fact that no charge whatever it made for these concerts and he urged music lovers generally to attend them.

Mr. Pfohl reported that through the generosity of the local Lions club and the Citizens Telephone company a copper line had been installed from the camp to Pisgah exchange, which will make direct broadcasts possible.

This year 140 students and counselors are attending the camp, which is a material increase over last year, Mr. Pfohl said. They come from eleven states and their qualifications as musicians are superior.

An expert from the material control division of the state board working with Walter F. Hart, county sanitarian, will spray all breeding places of flies in both the business and residential sections of town. A house-to-house canvass will be made and special

Local Officers Nab Escaped Convict In Gloucester Section

Leon Mason, escaped convict from the Cherokee state prison camp, was captured Monday night here in the Gloucester section by Sheriff Bert Freeman, Patrolman H. M. Morrow and Deputy Bill Bailey.

Mason, who was sent up from Transylvania in 1944 for stealing an automobile, escaped last July in Cherokee county. Immediately after his break he is reported to have returned to the Gloucester section and caused some disturbance and local officers were unable to nab him at that time. Last Monday he returned again to the upper part of the county; had a fight, shot at another man and drew a gun on several persons.

After dark Monday the three local officers arrested him in the Gloucester residence without any difficulty, the sheriff reported.

Building Will Be Similar To One At Pisgah Forest. Outside Of Stone

PROGRAM LAUNCHED

Contract for the erection of the Rosenwald school was let Thursday night to R. K. Stewart and Son, of High Point, the lower of two bidders, at a joint meeting of the board of commissioners and the county board of education. The High Point firm's bid was $137,000, according to Supt. J. B. Jones.

Work on the building is expected to begin within 20 days and the contractors expect to complete it by the first of February. It will be located on the lot adjoining the present property, which will be used as a play ground. Most of the real estate and the stone for the outside have been secured and the building, when completed, will be similar to the white school at Pisgah Forest.

The colored people here have been without a school building since theirs was destroyed by fire 5 years ago. Classes have been conducted in a church.

It was the consensus of officials that this building was the most stringently needed, hence it was placed first on the expansion program approved by the voters last December.

The school board announced some weeks ago that, once the program was launched, there would be no let-up in construction until it was completed. The high cost of materials and labor has given officials considerable concern, but after weighing all the factors they decided to undertake the program.

Stream Survey Being Made In Pisgah, Record Number Of Fishermen In '47

A stream survey, aimed at developing ways and means to improve sport fishing in the Pisgah National forest, is being made on Davidson river and other streams, Ranger W. W. Huber announces.

The survey crew is headed by Dr. Joseph Bailey, of Duke university department of zoology, and other members are: Frederick D. Morrison, who recently received his master of science degree in wildlife management from State college; Frank B. Cross, of Stillwater, Okla., who graduated from Oklahoma A. & M. this year with a major in wildlife management; and Yates M. Barber, student at state college, who is majoring in wildlife management.

Dr. Bailey's crew is staying in the forest and the survey is expected to take several weeks. The plan calls for a survey of the French Broad river watershed first, and of streams to the west later. The same type of data is being obtained as was gathered in the surveys of 1941 and 1942. This will be knowledge of the existing biological and physical conditions which will be the basis for sound management practices, the ranger reports. Earlier work proved extremely valuable in planning distribution of fish from the state's hatcheries, it is stated.

In commenting on fishing in the forest this season, Ranger Huber
