He gave many statistics on highway accidents and spoke of the steps being taken to reduce them, including reexamination of drivers and the car inspection law. The speaker stressed the obligation of individuals to drive cautiously and safety at all times, pointing out that the most rigid law enforcement would not make the highways safe if motor vehicle drivers did not comply with the laws enacted for the safety of themselves and others.

CBS PROGRAM

All CBS stations and that was when William Green was to speak at a AFL union meeting in city auditorium in Asheville. We later found that the wires had been cut in the basement of the building." Mr. Smith continued.

Erwin Holden, who was on duty in the central office here, stated that the broadcast cleared the Brevard office and the disruption of service occurred somewhere between Brevard and Asheville. The line goes into Hendersonville, but does not go into the switchboard office there, it is reported.

The consensus around town this week is that the failure of the broadcast to go through from coast to coast is a great loss for the county and the music camp as well. Due to the untiring efforts of a large number of local people and members of station WWNC, Asheville, the broadcast was made possible and the loss in publicity cannot be estimated in dollars and cents.

The investigation of the matter is being continued and any persons having any knowledge pertinent to the failure of the broadcast are urged to contact the telephone office here or Southern Bell in Asheville.

COLLEGE DAY IS OBSERVED HERE

Total Of 34 In Graduating Classes. Prospects Good For Fall Term

Brevard college Day was successfully observed at the Brevard Methodist church Sunday and was climaxed that evening with the awarding of diplomas to 34 students, graduating. President E. J. Coltrane presided at the special graduation service and awarded the diplomas.

Dr. L. B. Hayes, pastor of the First Methodist church of Hendersonville, delivered the graduation sermon to the graduates Sunday evening and a large crowd of parents and townspeople attended the service.

Preaching at the morning service, President Coltrane urged that the citizens of the nation be more concerned with what is being taught in the classrooms of the colleges of America. "In our schools we are shaping our civilization," he stressed.

Using as his subject, "One God," Dr. Coltrane said the Bible should be taught in the schools and that the young people should use the 10 commandments as the basis of their learning. He strongly advocated the dual system of education, one school supported by the state and one by the church. "Those two need each other," he stated.

In closing, the college president made a plea to keep alive the institutions of the churches, because "they can speak about God" during this atomic age.

Special music was furnished for the two services by a college choir with Mrs. Louise P. Miller at the organ. Rev. W. G. McFarland, pastor of the Methodist church, presided at the morning's service.

It was announced that the fall term of Brevard college would open on Monday, Sept. 13, and the president stated that prospects pointed to a mighty good student body, with over 200 of last year's students returning. "We are very optimistic," President Coltrane commented.

The following students from Brevard were among the graduates of the 1948 summer session: William H. Buchanan, Ralph Lee Davenport, John W. Misenheimer.
