

From A Reporter's Notebook

By FRANCES WALKER

With graduation over at the high school and pending next week end at Brevard college, there's an air of excitement in the thought of receiving that sheepskin for hours of classwork and home work. This county will be well represented in college graduating classes as well. I haven't heard who the graduating men are, but we have some girls finishing who have made commendable records. Ruth Gaines and Carolyn Kizer are both members of the graduating class at the University of North Carolina and both are going into the teaching field. They have made excellent records, as has Sarah McMahon, of Raleigh, formerly of Brevard, who is finishing Monday at Queens college in Charlotte. And at Columbia, Mo., Harriet Patterson is graduating from Stephens (junior college), and her parents are going out this week for all the festivities at this ultra-modern, progressive school.

Taking precedence over graduation in many homes is politics! How hot the races get the week before election! In many families the members are split on their candidate selection, because party can be the same and opinions differ during the primary. The result of some vigorous campaigning on the part of several will mean a large vote, which is preferable. The chairman of the board of elections even saw fit to have extra ballots printed because of the expected large vote. It's funny how politicians operate and the results they do or do not get. Going around talking to their friends is one of the best methods of politicking, and I can't help but make some comparisons of candidates outside this county. Dale Thrash has done more active work here in this county for himself. He's been in our office several times while working in Brevard but I don't recall having met either George Shuford or Frank Parker, who are running against him. In the gubernatorial race Bill Umstead spent a day visiting in Brevard, and no doubt, Hubert Olive has been here but I haven't met him. This doesn't necessarily indicate I'm voting for the men just because of some handshaking, but that handshake is never underestimated when it comes to politicking. Let me urge you to vote Saturday; you are merely exercising a privilege of democracy.

Received a letter from Myrtle (Mrs. E. D.) Trull last week along with a check to renew their subscription. The Trulls left Brevard for Norwood, Pa., where they are now making their home. I was amused at her notation which said, "I look forward to getting that paper as much as I do my husband's pay check. Ha!" Mrs. Trull indicated that she hoped that they would soon be moving back to Transylvania county. That's the way it is; everybody who leaves gets homesick for these beautiful mountains and fine people.

The male species is continually baffled by the clothing and appearance of the female—evidently from a very early age. I had bought a white sports blouse made of tery cloth with jersey ribbing around the neck, sleeves and waist. Last week after paying a visit to the of-

Jonas Bridges Is Promoted To Cpl. At Fort Jackson

WITH THE 8TH INFANTRY DIV., FORT JACKSON, S. C.—Jonas R. Bridges, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bridges, of Boiling Springs, recently received orders promoting him to the grade of corporal at Fort Jackson, S. C.

The promotion was in recognition of Corporal Bridges' outstanding performance of his assigned duties as chief of the radio-TV section of the Eighth Infantry division's public information office.

A 1948 graduate of Boiling Springs high school, Corporal Bridges attended Gardner-Webb college for two years. Prior to entering the military service in March of last year, at Charlotte, he was employed at radio station WPNF as announcer.

On a day I was wearing it, 4½ year old Michael Driscoll said to his 6-year-old sister, "Sis, how would you like to have a wash rag shirt like Frances?"

But that's not all... there's the insult about my pony tail. For months I've been letting my hair grow from very short to sort of longish, at least long enough to tie back in a pony tail. I walk briskly in to work one morning and Ira Armfield wants to know what happened to my hair. I explain. About five minutes later, evidently after some cogitation, Ira says, "Frances, did you say that hair style is called a mule tail?" Certainly not. "Well, whatever it is, it's freakish."

Now, how would men like it if we dressed and wore our hair in the same ole hum-drum way that they do. We just wouldn't be women, that's all.

The Times Arcade has always been such a bottleneck for traffic because it's too narrow to be anything but a one-way street. It's tough on truck drivers, too, believe you me. They have to come in to deliver to many stores which border in the vicinity. Now the town has put up a sign indicating they must not go out on the Jordan street side. I guess they're just experimenting to see if that will help the problem or add to it. Anyway, several of us were discussing it the other day when a big truck was struggling to turn around in front of here, and a young mother hastened to tell me what her three-year-old said about the Blue Ridge van. Watching it with interest one day, the child said in astonishment, "Mommie, how in the world do they ever get around the corners?"

FISH HOOK DOES ITS STUFF
A firm believer in using something that's proved its worth is Murray Conaway, of Memphis, Tenn. He found a hook inside a fish he was cleaning and since has caught nine bass with the hook.
