Brown, Pisgah Forest; and Austin Hogsed, Rosman. Recommendations for the precincts not represented were as follows: Harkness Barton, Cathey's Creek; Solomon Jones, Cedar Mountain; Charlie Nicholson, East Fork; and Emmett Owen, Old Toxaway.

It was decided at the convention here that any Transylvania Republican attending the congressional convention in Waynesville on March 2 or the state convention in Charlotte on March 6 would be seated as an official delegate from the county.

On motion by Ralph Fisher, representative from Transylvania, the chairman named a committee on nominations to report at the county convention here on April 10. Serving on that committee are the following: Ralph R. Fisher, Ed McCoy, Roland Owen, Mrs. Millard Teague, Eugene King, Frank Merrill, Harold McNeely and Lloyd Burhans.

It was also decided at the convention to recommend Chairman Hamlin and Mrs. Millard Teague as members of the state executive committee.

Chairman Hamlin said that plans are afoot to organize a Young Republican club in Transylvania.

Mr. Fisher was placed on a committee to seek a candidate for congress to oppose George A. Shuford, of Asheville, Democratic incumbent.

The only speech at the Waynesville meeting was made by W. W. (Tony) Candler, of Candler. He praised the Eisenhower administration and said, "You can't correct all the mistakes of government for 20 years in 12 months." He asserted he was not condemning the Democratic party "but the things it has stood for."

The convention approved the following resolutions:

Endorsing President Eisenhower's administration.
Endorsing "what Republican congressmen are trying to do."
Endorsing "efforts to root out Communists and pinkos."

While at the Waynesville convention, Mr. Fisher told reporters that if he returned to the general assembly he will vote for repeal of the so-called "secrecy law," which he favored in 1953.

He explained that he voted for the measure then because he felt an "emergency" existed. In this connection he remarked that there had been an abuse of responsibility by a few newspapers, but that he did not imply any blanket criticism of the press. Mr. Fisher was in court in Hendersonville yesterday and could not be reached for a fuller statement of his views about the "secrecy law," which amended a 25-year-old section of the executive budget act to permit the joint appropriations committee, or any of its subcommittees, to hold closed sessions after public hearings have been held.

Attending the Waynesville convention in addition to Mr. Hamlin, Mrs. Teague and Mr. Fisher were T. N. Davis, Jud Morgan, Mrs. Eugene King and son, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McDarris.

A similar group will attend the state convention in Charlotte on Saturday, at which Senator Frank Carlson, of Kansas, will deliver the keynote speech. Senator Carlson is a staunch supporter of President Eisenhower and was one of his candidates during the 1952 campaign.

GOP delegates at Charlotte will nominate for high state and federal offices, including the U. S. senate and two seats on the state supreme court, a state treasurer and insurance commissioner. New officers are also to be elected.

Health Department Urges Immunization Of Pre-1st Graders

The Transylvania health department has issued a statement to parents urging them to begin immunizations of six-year olds who will be starting school this fall.

The immunization shots for whooping cough, small pox and diphtheria will be given by any physician or may be secured from the health department at the general clinic on Fridays.

Miss Martha Choate, health nurse, states that pre-school clinics will begin this month. However, she urges parents who do not wish to have to wait in line to take advantage of the clinic days which are usually not too crowded.

The Friday clinic hours at the health office in the Tinsley building are 8 a. m. to 4 p. m.

body group had been advised to keep the State Board of Education informed on the findings and the recommendations regarding the Transylvania school system.

The board decided to invite a representative from the state department to the meeting when the recommendations are made public here. This should be sometime in April, Supt. J. B. Jones stated.

The board of education also decided to compile a set of school policies in looseleaf form, which could be expanded from time to time.

Items to be included, for example, would be the fact that all school board meetings are open to the public and visitors are always welcome. Another example, Supt. Jones explained, is the policy regarding the employment of teachers. Every attempt is made to employ teachers with standard certificates, and those without them are employed only when teachers with standard certificates are not available.

WILL ERECT TV TOWER ON PISGAH

Bid Will Be Let Immediately. Plan To Test In August

Permission for the construction of a television tower atop Mt. Pisgah was granted Station WLOS, Asheville, last Saturday by the National Forest Service, and station manager Charles M. Britt said work on it may begin this week end.

The announcement of the formal approval came after a rather heated controversy which ended in a public hearing in the Buncombe city last month.

The formal announcement came from Richard E. McArdle, chief of the Forest Service, who said that the secretary of agriculture had confirmed his decision.

It was pointed out in Mr. McArdle's statement that more than 9,000 individuals and 39 local governmental and civic organizations had endorsed the tower site. A portion of his statement follows:

"The Forest Service therefore concludes that the public interest would best be served by authorizing WLOS-TV to use Mt. Pisgah as a TV site in accordance with the expressed views of a great majority of local citizens, their locally elected representatives, and civic organizations.

"The easement to be issued WLOS-TV will require that appropriate facilities be constructed as inconspicuously as possible. Unnecessary disturbances of the environment or development not required for operation of the TV station will be prohibited. Access to the summit will be by cable car from the west side and not by road so as to minimize disturbance of the summit. Commercial ventures not connected with TV broadcasting will not be permitted on the area."

A number of projects adjacent to and on the peak must be completed before the actual tower construction begins around June 1st, according to Mr. Britt. These include improvement of an old road from Cruso to a point 2,200 feet below the summit. The road will connect with a three-rail two-car hoist to be used by company and forest service personnel for reaching the tower. There will be no road to the summit. A station house on the western slope of the peak and concrete foundation for the tower must also be constructed.

Mr. Britt says that the tower is already on hand. It is 300 feet high with a 50-foot antenna.

The station plans to begin test patterns between August 1 and 15th and expects to start commercial telecasting early in September.
