THE LAUGH CORNER

An old maid who was the self-appointed supervisor of village morals accused a man of being a drunkard because she had seen his bicycle parked outside of one of the local taverns. In retaliation, the accused man that evening parked his bicycle outside her door—and left it there all night.

First Dame: So you told that soldier he was the first soldier you ever kissed? Wasn't that a lie?
Second Dame: No, but it's a good thing he didn't ask me about the Marines.

Politician: "Congratulate me, dear, I got the nomination."
His Wife: "Honestly!"
Politician: "Why bring that up?"

Little Johnny had just been vaccinated, and the family doctor started to put a bandage over the vaccination spot. Johnny objected, he wanted the bandage put on the other arm instead.
"Why Johnny," said the doctor, "the bandage should be on the sore arm so the boys at school won't hit it."
Johnny insisted. "You don't know those guys."

The neighborhood gossip, trying to keep her files in good shape as to the business of all her neighbors, was busily questioning the small daughter of a family that moved into the vicinity to find out the family income.
"You say that you have nine children in your family?" she asked. "Isn't that terribly expensive? How can they afford so many?"
"It isn't hard," replied the small one. "We don't buy them. Just raise them."

Customer: May I exchange this unbreakable doll?
Toy Clerk: Is there something wrong with it?
Customer: No, but the baby has broken every breakable thing in the house with it!

Why didn't my dog win a prize? He failed on legs — not long enough.
Well, they touch the floor, don't they?

Employee: Could I have tomorrow off, sir? My wife wants me to help with housecleaning.
Boss: No, we're too busy.
Employee: Thank you, sir. I knew I could rely on you.

BEHIND THE NEWS

(Continued From Page Two) dary arising from the common universal ignorance of what to do with this soul . . . after the death of the body — led in a general way to the tedious notion of personal immortality . . . Karl Marx's eleven theses on Feuerbach, in my judgment, lay the basis for the dogma of the Marxist church. From this, it will be learned that for Marx the principal attack on our civilization must be on its religions, especially Christianity, Judaism and Islam. Therefore Schine's suggestion of working through the churches and the clergy is sound and Senator Jackson's levity was more plebian than philosophic. It is only through religion that Marxism can be destroyed; that is, through the acceptance of a mystical God who gave to man moral law. Marx laid this down as final: "The philosophers have interpreted the world in various ways; the point however is to change it." And one of the changes he desired was to abolish God.

GLANCING BACK

(Continued From Page Two) Douglas, manager of the Carolina Motor club here, reminded motorists again this week. Little Terry Brittain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Brittain, had her tonsils and adenoids removed at Biltmore hospital last week. Kiwanis club members learned last Thursday to call fellow Kiwanians by their first and correct names, following an interesting program conducted by Jerry (Jeremiah Philip) Jerome. Funeral service was held Tuesday afternoon at the Brevard First Baptist church for T. L. "Fate" Snelson, 72, who died at his home here early Monday morning, following an extended illness.
