Dunn's Rock Delegation Protests Hazardous Road

A resolution, which will also be presented to Commissioner Harry Buchanan, was brought before the commissioners.

It was asked that permission which was granted by the State

A number of other items was discussed by the board Wednesday morning, but action was postponed.

Observing the meeting were Mrs. Milton Herzog and Mrs. Al Ream, of the Brevard league of women voters.

VOTING WILL BE FROM 6:30-6:30, IN ALL PRECINCTS

Leaders Ask For Favorable Vote. No Organized Opposition Is Seen

JUDGES LISTED

Transylvania voters will join with others in North Carolina on Saturday in balloting on four amendments to the constitution. According to George Shuford, chairman of the county board of elections, the polls will be open from 6:30 a. m. until 6:30 p. m.

The general election books are being used in this election, and registration during the past 30 days has been light, Mr. Shuford reports. The first of the four amendments, referred to as the Pearsall plan, would authorize education expense grants for private education and local vote to suspend local schools should an "intolerable" situation arise.

Two of the other amendments involve the General Assembly. One would allow necessary compensation to its members and the other would change the date for convening from January to February.

The final amendment on which voters will ballot on Saturday would authorize married women to exercise powers of attorney conferred upon by her husband.

The consensus locally is for the "Pearsall" plan, and it is also believed that the voters will favor the amendments across the state.

Local education and political leaders have spoken out for the successful passage of the plan, and there has been no organized effort against it.

Governor Luther Hodges, who is giving full support to the plan, wired Transylvania's representative Mrs. Thelma R. Fisher Wednesday morning his congratulations on a fine job for the school and other amendments.

The governor urged all citizens interested in preserving the schools
