Newspapers Are Freedom's
Key To Better Living In US

Functions Of Press Briefly
Outlined. History Of Times
Recorded

Your newspaper is freedom's key to better living. It unlocks the door to a richer life for everyone.

In this country the concepts of a free press and a free society developed together. Because it is free the American newspaper has been able to broaden its activities and to meet new demands as the nation has grown. Today the newspaper fulfills a myriad of functions. Homemakers' pages contain helpful facts. Women read these pages to learn how to prepare a delicious meal or remove an ink spot from a carpet.

The advertiser promotes his products in a field of open competition. The more he advertises the more he sells and the more he sells, the lower he can reduce prices. Factories, production and payrolls grow. Bigger payrolls result in more prosperous communities and a stronger nation.

Investors depend on market quotations for the latest information on stock markets and commodity exchanges.

Shippers watch transportation schedules, weather reports, freight rates and market outlooks.

Businessmen study success and failure.

The union man studies the progress of legislation and negotiations. Medical columns offer the advice of competent physicians who answer questions, give advice and offer suggestions, all in the interest of better health.

Local health authorities make their important announcements in the news pages.

Homes are improved by readers of the how-to-do-it columns. They mend sagging doors, silence squeaky floors, repair plumbing.

Homeowners build backyard patios and outdoor fireplaces. Apartment dwellers redecorate and furnish.

Gardeners, both the homegrown variety and the professional, depend on the garden news to tell them what to do and how to use new chemicals that promote plant life and control insects and weeds.

News columns report with comparative objectivity on the activities of the great, near great and the common people, the meetings, conventions, speeches and interviews.

Readers learn who is sick, who died, who was born, who married, who was divorced, who took his own life, who was hurt in an accident, the tolls of disaster and of the eternal efforts of the wrongdoer and his nemesis, the lawman.

Newspapers scrutinize courts, the law, politics, elections and government. They inform and sometimes arouse the electorate. Through editorials problems are posed and thinking is guided.

Up to the hour reports from the United States Weather Bureau are scanned by millions of persons daily who want to know if it will rain, snow, freeze or if the weather man is wrong.

Special occasions are chronicled from the worlds of music, art, the theatre, books and Hollywood.

Americans have more leisure time than ever before and in turn rely on newspapers for more and more suggestions of what to do with it. The person with time on his hands automatically consults the newspaper to learn more about his hobby, the road to the beach or the ski area, for reports on spectator sports and outdoor activities — golf, fishing, hunting or hiking.

Radio listeners refer to program time tables. A few children even learn to read while studying television schedules. The travel page beckons both the footloose wanderer and the dreamer chained to home and hearth.

The classified advertising section provides a daily market place for buyer and seller, a market place so vast as to be immeasurable and one that sometimes extends halfway around the world.

In civic promotions better living results in such projects as the construction of a playfield or the control of pollution of the water and air. Corrupt police departments are reorganized. Political rasicals are turned out. Safety campaigns are launched.

Mighty fun raising drives set out annually to whip poverty, polio, cancer, heart disease, muscular dystrophy and similar afflictions. Their workers call repeatedly on newspapers for support. They receive it, too.

These same newspapers sponsor wholesome youth activities, such as summer camps, and in other ways keep wary vigil over juvenile problems.

Many a boy has begun a business career on a newspaper route. Farmers attend the progress of prices and market tends in distant
