GARRETT ANXIOUS TO SEE THE GOAL OVER SUBSCRIBED

Transylvania Is Setting An Example For Other WNC Counties To Follow

BUILDING UNDERWAY

A total of $50,000 is now in sight in the Brevard college development fund campaign, Director Ed B. Garrett reports today.

With a number of canvassers yet to report, the director feels that the goal will be oversubscribed.

"This will be an excellent accomplishment for this county and we feel that we are setting an example for other counties to follow," Mr. Garrett declared.

Canvassers, numbering 35 strong, have been working since early December, and they will continue the campaign until as many people as possible have been contacted.

Mr. Garrett urges canvassers to report in to him as to the number of persons contacted and the names of those persons who have not been seen.

Others who would like to contribute to progressive Brevard college are asked to contact President Robert H. Stamey at the local institution.

The college trustees anticipate raising $500,000 in the overall campaign, in 44 WNC counties and this amount will be used to build a campus center building, and a music and fine arts building.

Both of these structures are directly needed on the campus to meet the demands of a student body which is now over 400.

Construction on the campus center building, which will be one of the finest ever erected in Brevard, is moving along rapidly and it should be completed by early spring.

Chairman Garrett reminds persons desiring to contribute to the Brevard College Development fund campaign that all contributions are deductible from state and federal income taxes. Pledges are also being solicited over a three-year period.

COMMERCE BODY ADOPTS BUDGET

Many Items Are Discussed By Directors At Busy Meeting Tuesday

A budget of $4,540.00 was adopted by the directors of the Brevard chamber of commerce at the regular meeting of board of directors Tuesday night at the city hall.

Increased activity this year in matter of location and service to prospective new residents who will be connected with construction and operation of the new Du Pont plant and expanded Olin Mathieson chemical plant will require extra money this year, it was pointed out.

Two special groups are already working on definite plans to help newcomers expected in the county in connection with Du Pont and Olin, it was stated by President Frank Bridges in going over the budget requirements.

Effort will be made to contact each individual coming here and help them locate within the county. Referral of newcomers to school, church, civic and social —Turn To Page Five

Kiwanians Are Selling Brevard Publicity Tags

Brevard Kiwanians will give one final "push" this week end in an effort to sell "1957 Brevard" tags to go on the front of local automobiles.

All funds derived in this project go into the youth program of the Kiwanis club, and the tags are sold for $1.00 each.

Members of the club are selling the plates, which can also be purchased at the news stands in Brevard. —Turn To Page 10a

Series Of Polio Clinics To Be Started In Transylvania Next Monday Morning

Over 1,000 Children Are Expected To Receive The Salk Vaccine

A series of polio clinics will be started in Transylvania's schools on Monday. According to Dr. John Folger, county health officer, over 1,000 Salk vaccine shots are expected to be given in a 10-day period.

The first clinic is slated Monday morning at 9:00 o'clock in the Harry H. Straus school in North Brevard, and the final clinics are set for Feb. 28th here at the Brevard elementary school.

A clinic for upper Transylvania will be held when the new Quebec school is completed this winter.

Dr. Folger says that the P-TA organizations are assisting in the project by furnishing clerical help, refreshments, etc. He also announces that the clinics are for school pupils only, and that younger children may get the shots at the health office or from their private physician.

Another series of clinics will be given in approximately four weeks, when the second vaccine shot will be given.

The complete schedule of the first series is as follows:

Auto Tag Sale Is Lagging, Deadline Midnight, The 15th

Sale of license tags is running about 20 percent behind last year throughout the state, and Transylvania county is no exception, according to Mrs. Harold Norwood, local agent for the Carolina Motor club office.

The deadline for displaying new tags on all motor vehicles is midnight Friday, February 15th. On February 13th Mrs. Norwood reported having sold a total of 3,110 tags for autos, trucks and trailers. On the same date last year she had sold 3,573 tags.

By February 15th last year the Carolina Motor club office had sold a total of 4,149. Mrs. Norwood points out that there must be at least 1,000 more tags to be sold and —Turn To Page Ten

P-TA ASKING FOR SALARY INCREASE IN SCHOOL SYSTEM

Founder's Day Celebrated At Meeting This Past Monday Night

A resolution asking the legislature to raise the pay of school teachers was adopted at the regular meeting of the Brevard elementary P-TA on Monday night.

Figures were presented at the meeting which showed the tremendous difference between the salaries of teachers in this state and the salaries of workers with similar educational background employed in other occupations.

As an example, the beginning salary of an industrial worker would be about $390 per month plus fringe benefits, while a teacher in the schools with a bachelor degree or certification for four —Turn To Page Ten

Country Club To Hold Public Meet

All persons interested in the Brevard Country club are cordially invited to attend a meeting this Friday night, beginning at 8:00 o'clock in Gaither's Dogwood room.

Because of the expense of heating the huge club house this winter, the club has been closed until spring, however, the golf course has been open and many golfers have been playing all winter.

Since the president, Jay Coffey, is moving to Asheville, the directors felt that this would be an appropriate time to hold a general meeting and invite the public to attend.

Redmile Named Field Project Manager Of Du Pont's Silicon Brevard Plant

Harold Franklin Redmile, field project manager, who has been with the Du Pont Company's Engineering Department since 1935, will be the field project manager for construction of the Brevard plant which was announced last week.

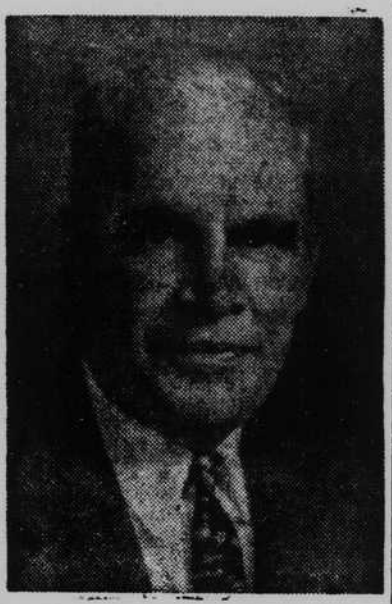

Redmile, now field project manager, at Antioch, Calif., started with Du Pont as a pipe fitter's helper on construction at Baltimore, Md. Later the same year he became a layout engineer at the Baltimore and Belle W. Va., plants. In 1937 he was promoted to area engineer and two years later became assistant construction superintendent at the Belle Works.

The following year he was made assistant field project manager for construction of the Morgantown, W. Va., Ordnance Works —Turn To Page Four

Governor Presents Far-Reaching Program As '57 Legislature Opens

North Carolina's genial governor, Luther Hodges officially opened the 1957 General Assembly Monday night, when he asked the lawmakers to enact a batch of far-reaching measures that would affect vitally every citizen of the state.

He also presented the state's first billion dollar budget.

In an address to a joint legislative session, the governor urged revision of the state's tax structure, separation of the Prisons Department from the Highway Commission, reorganization of the Highway Commission, reapportionment of the Legislature, and enactment of highway safety legislation including a motor vehicles inspection law.

He urged passage of a state minimum wage law, elimination of the absentee ballot in general elections, and submission of "the liquor question to a vote of the people."

The state constitution, he declared, "is old and outmoded," and he proposed creation of a study commission to recommend constitutional changes to the next General Assembly.

Another study commission, he added, is needed to "think seriously of the problem of planning and financing a capitol office and legislative building" to replace the present Capitol as a meeting place for the General Assembly.

Touching on the segregation issue, Hodges said North Carolina "has to date dealt well with this problem" thanks to the "wisdom" of the Legislature in enacting the school assignment law and the Pearsall plan.

He said the Pearsall committee is studying to determine whether it will recommend any changes in some of the school laws."

Then, in an apparent reference to the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, Hodges —Turn To Page 10a
