of town, chased it down several streets and out the Nicholson Creek Road. It was then that the driver got ahead of them and jumped, so no arrests were made. Six gallons of moonshine were confiscated. The car was later reported stolen. (Times Staff Photo)

New York's outstanding organist, Dr. Robert Baker, will give a recital here next Tuesday night on the beautiful new three-manual Schantz organ at the Brevard Methodist church.

This is the second in a series of Lyceum programs and it is sponsored jointly by the college and the church.

CASH BONDS FORFEITED, GO IN SCHOOL FUND

Many Actions Are Continued Due To Absence Of Three Attorneys

DOCKET REVIEWED

In spite of the fact that a large number of cases was continued, more than half of the criminal docket of the January-February term of Superior court was disposed of prior to adjournment Tuesday afternoon.

The continuance of more than 30 cases was due to the fact Attorneys Potts, Eller and Ramsey were in Raleigh for a case before the State Supreme court.

Judge J. E. Craven, Jr., presided this week over the criminal term of court and the majority of the cases tried involved traffic violations.

Marvin McCall, clerk of court, reports that a large number of cash bonds were forfeited and this money goes to the school fund. They are as follows: Rachel Franks, no operators license; Warren White, no operators license; Charles Whitson, two charges, drunk driving; Henry Grant, no operators license; Carroll Ashby Phillips, no chauffeurs license; Charles Harry Daves, reckless driving; Floyd Samuel Weathers, speeding; Joseph Franklin Gantt, speeding; Franklin Delano Owens, speeding; R. A. Johnson, speeding; Carl Aiken, speeding; Ernest Helmet Below, drunk driving; Charles Broadway Cole, drunk driving; Luther Covington Atkin.

No Definite Commitment Is Expected Within The Next 60 Days

A delegation from the U. S. Army Reserve, headed by Lt. Col. Lee E. James, of Asheville, was in Brevard last week investigating the proposed new Armory for Brevard.

Lt. Col. James, who is sub-district chief of WNC reserves, says that Brevard is one of the communities where continuing negotiations are being made about an armory. "This does not mean that it is a reality," the colonel explained, saying that funds could be withdrawn.

Based upon community support, funds could be made available for an armory if everything works out.

Brevard now supports three reserve units which qualifies the town for the armory.

This permits the town to be in consideration for the allocation of construction funds.

Col. James said he could make no definite commitment at this time about the armory, but that he does hope something will be forthcoming in about two months.

Interest Mounts In Politics Here, Filing Dates Given

Since the announcement last week of Sheriff E. V. "Scott" Dillingham for re-election, considerable interest has been stirred up in politics.

Thomas R. Eller, county Democratic chairman, announces the filing dates. They are March 22 for the governor, all state officers, supreme court justices, superior court judges, U. S. Senators, congressmen and solicitors; and April 19 for county and township officers, state senate and house of representatives.

The county elections board will meet and organize on April 12th this year. The board will be appointed after a meeting of precinct chairmen that has been called for February 14th.

The county Democratic convention is fixed by the state executive committee subsequent to March 10th.

Trout Hatchery In Pisgah National Forest Is Enlarged, Work Progressing

Terry Company Completing First Phase Of Project. Other Bids Invited

Invitations to bid are being sent out for the new trout hatchery in Pisgah National Forest, and plans have already been expanded to include two more raceways than were called for originally.

The total number of raceways is now six in place of the original four announced.

Maurice Bryant, Jr., superintendent at the hatchery, says that the bids must be back in by March 1st and at that time they will be sent to Washington for approval.

Much progress has already been made at the hatchery site in spite of wintry weather.

The Terry Construction company is now working on preliminary work that includes the raceways, dams, bridges and domestic water system.

The water system is completed and work is continuing on the bridge. Mr. Bryant points out that this completion will depend upon the weather. The same is true of the two residences and equipment building. Only several more weeks of work are needed to complete them, but the weather will determine when this can be done, he points out.

The building of the fish hatchery will mean the first time that Western North Carolina can have local supply for stocking their streams. At present time the trout

The Grand Jury Makes Many Recommendations

Much repair work to the court house, the jail and various schools of Transylvania was recommended by the Grand Jury of the January-February term of Superior court.

Mark Osborne was foreman of the jury, and by committees, inspections were made of the various county offices and public schools.

It was also recommended that the grammar school here be checked by an engineer for safety.

The baths in the old grammar school are said unsanitary and should have new tile fixtures. This is imperative, the report said.

The elementary building was said in need of paint and several window shades, along with toilets in the basement.

The Grand jury also recommended that the playground be leveled in order to utilize the space to the fullest extent.

Another recommendation at both the elementary school here in Brevard and Rosenwald was for metal, non-skid sheaths on
