Fire Prevention Week To Begin October 5th. Quotes Are Given

President Eisenhower has proclaimed the week beginning October 5 as Fire Prevention week, and no one has a more direct interest in this proclamation than the foresters of North Carolina.

The number of forest fires on the Pisgah National forest has been low for the past several years. Ranger Ted Seely says that two things have helped - people are more careful and the weather has been cooperative. The foresters fear, however, that the favorable weather conditions may not always continue, and this leaves it entirely up to man.

Can we keep the fires out of the forest? Ranger Seely says he believes the folks who use the forest are becoming more and more careful every year. "Smoky the Bear" and "Keep America Green" reminders are with us all the time.

"Our forest resources are becoming too valuable to burn up," said Ranger Seely. "The soil, the water, the wildlife, the campsites, and the timber increase in value every year. As more landowners realize the value of their woodland, there will be fewer and smaller fires."

Most forest fires are man-caused. Ranger Seely urges us to use care in disposing of the burnable material we clear out of our house during Fire Prevention week. Make sure that no fires get away from the trashburner to start a fire in the woods.

Remove from heat; add butter and cool. Add vanilla and beat until creamy. Spread on cake quickly before frosting hardens.

Seniors Receive New Class Rings; Style Changes Observed

Thursday, September 18, ended a long period of patient and impatient waiting for the seniors who ordered a class ring.

The rings are of a new and different design for BHS. They have a cut stone and, for a change, there is no emblem on top. The rings were ordered in three weights, light (preferred mostly by girls), medium (optional), and the extra heavy (preferred mostly by boys).

A lot of happy seniors, who ordered last spring, have the waiting over with, but some don't. More orders will be taken in the near future. A notice will be given by the office.
