Brevard Negro Is Held On Murder Charge

Herbert Avery, Negro, is being held in the county jail on a first-degree murder charge.

He was arrested Saturday night by Sheriff "Scott" Dillingham and Deputies Clyde Hubbard and Ed Singletary at the Transylvania community hospital where he had taken his wife, Pearlina Avery, after she had been shot with a 12-gauge shotgun. She was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

According to Sheriff Dillingham, who investigated the shooting, Avery and a neighbor, Willy Smith, had brought the critically injured woman to the hospital after she had reportedly been shot by Avery. He is being held without bond for preliminary hearing and trial before the spring term of the Superior court.

Mrs. Patton Resigns As Superintendent Of Welfare

The retirement of Mrs. C. Y. Patton, superintendent of public welfare in Transylvania county, is announced today by Freeman Hayes, chairman of the county board of commissioners.

Mrs. Patton has served ably in this position for the past 24 years, Mrs. Hayes told the commissioners at the February meeting, and it was with regrets that they accepted her resignation.

The commissioners expressed their deep appreciation for the outstanding services that Mrs. Patton has rendered the people of Transylvania county.

They also announced that from now until June 1st, the welfare department will be under the capable supervision of Mrs. Juanita F. Cox, who is serving as acting superintendent of public welfare. Case-workers on the staff include Mrs. Louise Henderson and Mrs. Ann D. Runyans.

On June 1st, Mrs. Edith Jenkins will return to Transylvania as superintendent of public welfare.

With some 11½ years of experience, a part of which was in Transylvania county, Mrs. Jenkins is currently taking post graduate work in social science at the University of Tennessee. She is a native of Sylvania.

Mrs. Patton was appointed acting superintendent of public welfare in July, 1936, and a year later was made superintendent.

Prior to this time, Mrs. Patton was regularly taking crippled children to the Shriners hospital in Greenville, S. C., on free clinic day. A car and driver was furnished for the trips by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carrier, and these trips were continued until three years later when an orthopedic clinic was established. —Turn to Page Ten

"George Washington's Navy" By Brevard Author Will Be Released

Brevard's William Bell Clark, who is considered the foremost living authority on naval warfare during the Revolutionary war, is the author of a new book, entitled, "George Washington's Navy."

It will be released on February 22, by the Louisiana State University press. Containing some 290 pages, "George Washington's Navy" has six illustrations.

Mr. Clark is also the author of five books dealing with men and events of the Revolutionary War period, including "Ben Franklin's Privateers," "The First Saratoga," and "Captain Dauntless," all published by the Louisiana State University Press.

Mr. Clark is a contributor, on naval subjects and biography, to the Encyclopedia Britannica, and he has been named editor of the four-volume documentary naval history of the American Revolution, which will be published by the Department of the Navy.

No phase of early American history has been more maltreated than the period during which Washington's active little navy flourished in New England waters. Biographers and historians have missed entirely many of the events which augmented the success, or at times, the ill-success of his Excellency's naval efforts.

In "George Washington's Navy," at last is the true story—historically correct but as exciting as a fanciful sea yarn—of what the great Commander-in-chief accomplished on the high seas during the early years of the American Revolution.

The American squadron, never numbering over six miniature war vessels, was established in the fall of 1775 to harass the supply lines of the British in Boston. Despite many adversities, the little fleet accomplished a large part of its mission and proudly brought in 55 enemy vessels containing everything from turmps to powder and guns.

Program Highlights

WPNF To Broadcast Rock-'N-Roll Show Direct From Teenage Center

Attention all teenagers and others who like rock-n-roll music.

WPNF will broadcast direct from the Teenage Center in Brevard this coming Saturday night from 10:00 to 11:00 a special rock and roll show.

According to Bobby Hoyle, station manager, the show will be conducted by Disc Jockey Ed Rogers, who will play the favorite selections of the teenagers.

A special feature of the show will be the awarding of many prizes to persons attending the youth center that evening.

The Brevard junior chamber of commerce honored three outstanding citizens of 1959 at the annual awards banquet at Gaithers. A gathering of some 75 persons was on hand to hear Dr. Emmett McLarty, president of Brevard college, deliver the main address and present the three awards.

Named as Transylvania county's outstanding Young Farmer was Nathaniel Woody, of the Little River community. Douglas Israel of Brevard was named the Outstanding Teen-ager of the Year, and Dr. John R. Folger, Jr., was named Brevard's Outstanding Young Man of the year.

The growth and success of his farm in Little River during recent years and 1959 in particular was cited as the main reason for Mr. Woody's selection for the outstanding young farmer award. His name will be entered in the state O.Y.F. competition, and he will be Transylvania's representative at the Jaycee sponsored O.Y.F. banquet which will be held in Durham next month.

Young Israel, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Israel, of Brevard, has made an outstanding record at Brevard high school where he is a senior. His leadership, his scholastic record and his numerous extra-curricular activities at the local school, as well as his religious activities in his church, are ample proof of his worthiness of the award made to him.

Young Israel is the Transylvania county delegate to compete for the Morehead scholarship to the University of North Carolina. In the district competition in Asheville, he was named a WNC winner and will compete in the state finals later this month at Chapel Hill.

Dr. Folger's numerous community activities, his outstanding religious activity at the Brevard-Davidson River Presbyterian church, and his success in his profession were all instrumental in his selection to attend the meeting. —Turn to Page Four

Town Manager Moves To Stop Rumors

Tom Henry, Brevard's town manager, reports that certain rumors have been circulated accusing a local policeman of being involved in an arson case in Buncombe county and other crimes. "This is a case of mistaken identity of another person with like (or the same) name and our local police officer was in no way involved," Mr. Henry declared.

"It is a serious offense for a person to slander the character and reputation of an individual," Mr. Henry commented.

Hymn Singing Said Successful

The Transylvania Baptist association hymn sing held at the Gladly Branch Baptist church last Sunday afternoon was attended by approximately 325 people.

Rev. Dan Wallin presided over the meeting, and singing was led by Mr. Wallin and Fred Kilstrom. Ray Childers, minister of music and education at the First Baptist church, was the accompanist.

The group was welcomed to the new Gladly Branch church by the pastor, Rev. Millard Brock. Rev. James Ballard presented the aims and purposes of the hymn sing, to encourage more individual participation on the part of the congregation, and to develop and strengthen the music ministry.
