Rosand To Play

Variety On Concert Menu At Music Camp This Week

The accent is on variety this weekend at the Brevard Music center, home of Transylvania Music camp and the Brevard Music festival. Guest artists will be conductor Bernard Fitzgerald, and husband-and-wife team Eileen Flissler, pianist, and Aaron Rosand, violinist.

For local citizens, this will mark the fourth weekend that they have had an opportunity to attend the concert series at the music center.

Friday evening guest conductor Bernard Fitzgerald, of the University of Kentucky, will occupy the podium as the concert band presents a program of classic band literature. Handel's "Royal Fireworks Music" will open the program, which includes "Nocturne" by Louis Spohr, "Youth Triumphant Overture" by Hadley and "Immovable Do" by Percy Grainger.

The solid sound of Sixteenth century brass will highlight the program, as the brass ensemble plays the Gabrieli "Canzona No. 2." The mood changes to one of calico and bare feet with the performance of Vaughan Williams' "Folk Song Suite" — including "Seventeen Come Sunday," "My Bonny Boy," and folk songs from Somerset. In conclusion the foot-tapping rhythm of John Philip Sousa will be heard in the "Fairest of the Fair" march.

Saturday evening at 8:15 pianist Eileen Flissler will perform the Brahms "Concerto No. 2 in B-Flat Major" with the Brevard Music Center orchestra, under the direction of James Christian Pfohl. Miss

AARON ROSAND

Flissler, who many believe is on her way to becoming the number one American woman pianist, was hailed as a prodigy at age 9.

After attending Curtis Institute of Music, she made her first major orchestra appearance with the Philadelphia orchestra. A veteran of two world tours, she has recently returned from a tour of the Far East as soloist with Thomas Scherman and the Little Orchestra society. She is the wife of violinist Aaron Rosand. Also on Saturday evening's program will be Tchaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet Overture"
