Community Is Shocked By Douglas Death

Reflecting the deep interest of Transylvania voters in local political issues and those of a national scope, voters of this county marched to the polls more than 7600 strong on Tuesday and gave sweeping victories to the Democrat candidates except in the presidential race.

The community was shocked just before the polls closed as one of the candidates, C. M. Douglas, the incumbent tax collector, was reported to have taken his life.

As to the naming of a successor to Mr. Douglas in the office of tax collector, Ralph H. Ramsey, Jr., Transylvania's county attorney, requested a ruling from the Attorney General's office at Raleigh on Wednesday morning.

Later in the day, the Attorney General advised that if the canvass of ballots showed that Mr. Douglas was elected, a successor to him should be appointed by the governor on December 5th, when the new term begins.

For the interim period, he also advised that a successor be appointed by the governor.

In respect to Mr. Douglas, the county commissioners have closed the office until after the funeral Thursday afternoon.
