For the second consecutive year, Hugh N. Lambert has been named state corn champion.

The announcement was made at N. C. State college in Raleigh, on Wednesday, January 18th, at a luncheon sponsored by the North Carolina Seedmen's association.

Mr. Lambert's prize-winning yield was 156.53 bushels per acre, actual harvest, and he grew the yield with Funks hybrid G-711AA.

He was awarded a plaque from the Seedmen's association and a $50.00 savings bond.

In addition to his state honors, Mr. Lambert, who lives at route 1, Brevard, has been the Transylvania county champion and the Western district champion for the past three years.

Mr. Lambert was accompanied to Raleigh for the occasion by Jim Davis, county agent. The local trophy awards are made possible by the First Union National bank of Brevard.

Labor Board Considering Petition To Conduct Election Here At O-M

Sidelights On Inauguration

By DOROTHY WALLACE

Less than a week has passed since the inauguration of John Fitzgerald Kennedy as President of the United States of America but the thousands who witnessed the impressive ceremony, the arduous, inaugural balls and the other gala festivities, and the millions of TV viewers will speak of the dignity and grandeur for years to come.

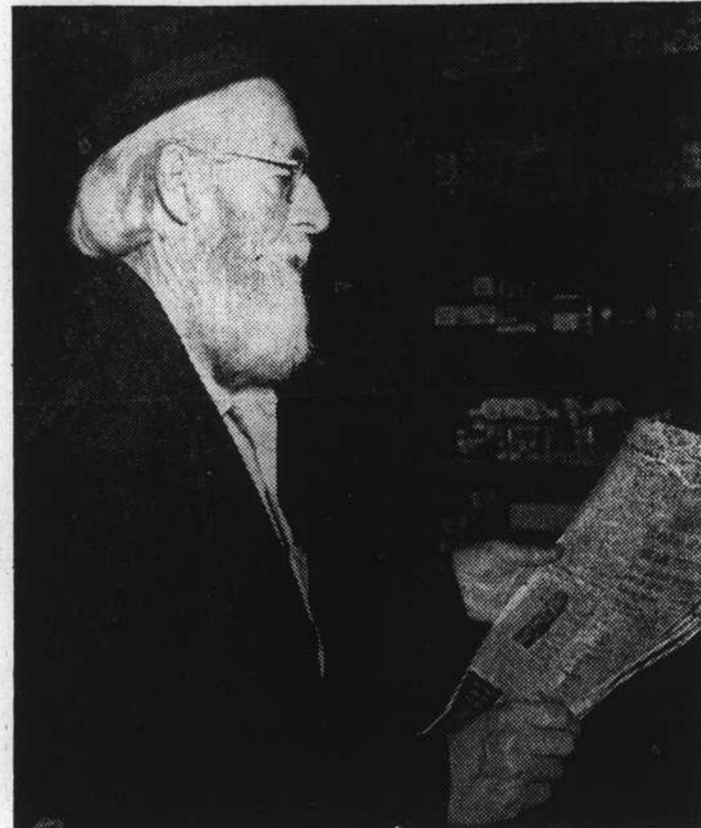

An overnight four-inch snow made the setting spectacular. Though the blizzard threw into confusion many arrangements for the big parade and accompanying political festivities, the freshly fallen snow added to the historic rite — the ride together down Pennsylvania Avenue of the incoming and outgoing Presidents, symbol of democracy's continuity, and the simple but majestic outdoor oath of office.

The huge crowd in the trampled snow stood awed and bareheaded as first Lyndon B. Johnson took the oath as Vice-President, and then a little later Mr. Kennedy as President.

The electric atmosphere touched everyone — in hotels, on the streets, in the hurrying crowds — the belief that a "new frontier" had been reached prevailed.

Brevard's Alvin J. Patterson, who was in Washington for the festivities, was highly impressed with President Kennedy's inaugural speech, as were others who heard his re-dedication of purpose.

Mr. Patterson was also highly impressed with the image created by the Kennedy and Johnson families as they appeared at the Inaugural Ball held at the — Turn to Page Ten

Brownell Issues Statement, Past Record Is Cited

The National Labor Relations board has been asked by the United Papermakers and Paperworkers, AFL-CIO, to conduct an election among hourly employees at Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation's Pisgah Forest operations. The board has the petition under consideration.

Philip C. Brownell, vice president and manager, Ecusta Paper and Film Operations, announces that notice of filing the petition was received January 23, from Reed Johnston, of Winston-Salem, eleventh regional director, NLRB. The petitioner seeks to be designated as the collective bargaining representative of certain production and maintenance employees, who are on the hourly payroll at Pisgah Forest.

If an election is held it would be the first NLRB election at Pisgah Forest since 1949, at which time employees voted almost five to one against union representation.

The petition followed a written request last week that the company recognize the union as bargaining agent "for the purpose of collective bargaining of matters pertaining to the wages, hours and conditions of employment."

The union request was rejected by the company. Only the employees can decide a matter of such great importance to their and the company's welfare Mr. Brownell said.

Employees have voiced support of management in previous attempts at union organization. In 1949, when two American Federation of Labor unions sought representation, employees voted 898 to 181 against union representation. This NLRB election climaxed the union's efforts over a period of several years to organize the plant.

Five years later, after another period of activity, union organizers left the community when they were unable to gain enough — Turn to Page Five

Operations Mountain Top

Helicopter Pilots Are On Maneuvers In Pisgah Forest

Huge helicopters flying over Brevard and the Pisgah National Forest this week have attracted much attention.

According to Ranger Ted Seely, they are Marine helicopters of the 26th Air Corps group at New River. Special permission has been granted the helicopter pilots for military operation on government land in the Pisgah ranger district.

The coastal-based Marines, using helicopters quartered at Donaldson Air Force Base in South Carolina, are carrying out their mission on the mountainous terrain of Pisgah Ledge country, site of the Sunburst Burn forest fire about 25 years ago which ravaged the area.

Purpose of the exercises is to train pilots and helicopter crewmen in landings and take-offs in mountain regions at elevations up to 6,200 feet. The maneuver will be led by Major Jack Miller, officer in charge of the WNC practice operation.

Forest Service personnel said the operation probably would include the use of up to 10 helicopters and involve from 40 to 50 men. They added, however, that no permanent encampment in the area is planned. Personnel participating in the air exercises are returning to their base daily.

The training is expected to continue intermittently through March 15th.

Ranger Seely explained that the training is in answer to a military need to conduct mountain terrain exercises close to troop bases. Such exercises have been conducted in WNC mountains previously through USFS-granted permits.

Drama In Making

Historical Group Will Have Important Meeting, To Climax Pioneer Drive

"Wear your Pioneer Buttons". That's the advice of Ray M. Winchester, chairman of the committee assigned by the Historical Commission to complete the county-wide canvass for Pioneer memberships.

"Those who prefer to make voluntary contributions to the fund instead of taking out a membership are welcome to do so," Mr. Winchester said.

Adult memberships are $5. Student memberships are $1. "Holders of membership cards will be entitled to various privileges," Mr. Winchester explained, in answer to inquiries as to what benefits members will have in connection with the Centennial Program.

"First, the names of members will be enrolled on the permanent historical scroll that is to be established by the Historical Commission. This scroll will become part of the county's official history.

"Next, the members will be entitled to a general admission seat at one performance of the Centennial pageant. They will also be entitled to attend other Centennial events which are now being planned and will be announced in the early spring by the Centennial Committee.

The reason wearing the Centennial buttons is urged by Mr. Winchester is to identify those persons who have already joined the Pioneers during the initial stage of the fund raising held last spring. Due to conflicts of other events and a multiplicity of other demands on the time of the campaign managers, the raising of the funds has been postponed until this time. "Now the Centennial is upon us and

College Students Hear Talk On School Finances

The student body at Brevard College was given an insight into the financial structure of the college at a recent assembly program when Business Manager C. A. Butterworth, Jr. discussed sources of revenue, expenditures and accounting procedures.

According to Mr. Butterworth, total assets of the college exceed $2,660,000. He said, "It is expected that by the completion of our capital expansion program, in approximately three years, this figure will be $4,250,000." The college operates on an annual budget of $515,000 at present, the Business Manager said.

Of the total revenue received by the college last year, 50.3 percent was derived from student fees. 28.1 percent from appropriations, gifts and grants. 10.6 percent came from endowment sources, and 13.0 percent from other miscellaneous income.

Members of the Transylvania Historical association will dramatize some early happenings in the county when they meet on Saturday, January 28th, at 8:00 o'clock, in the court house.

Mrs. G. H. Lyday, president, states that centennial plans will also be emphasized.

Another feature will be the reading of a paper prepared by Dr. Wilson Lyday describing the first hundred years of the Lyday family of doctors in this area.

Officials of the Association urge all new comers as well as long-time residents of the county to attend this meeting.

The first events have already taken place," Mr. Winchester said. "We cannot delay any further in winding-up this important job."

The campaign will be concluded by volunteer teams this Thursday night (January 26th). A house-to-house canvass will be made in each of five districts in Brevard, and it is expected that every rural community will also have a team working on the clean-up job.

Dan Scannell is director of the campaign work in the county and he has been promised the aid of members of the community development clubs in their respective districts.

Mr. Winchester has called a meeting of all team members to be held in Gaither's restaurant.
