Business Transacted At Meeting Of World War I Vets

Meeting of World War I Veterans, Inc., held Sunday afternoon at the Transylvania house, it was decided to have a picnic, daughters, sisters, widows of World War I veterans to attend the next meeting at Barracks 893, with view of a ladies auxiliary, will be held the first Sunday (May 7) starting at 10 a.m. Widows, daughters and other relatives of World War I veterans are invited to join the auxiliary. Most of the barracks about the United States have ready formed auxiliaries. Many of them are most active.

Ninth District Commander, H. E. Page, of Hendersonville, conducted the meeting Sunday, assisted by officials of the Asheville, Waynesville and Hendersonville barracks.

Several new members were signed up and some of the old members paid their dues for the current year.

One veteran, asked before he joined: "what becomes of his $3.00 annual membership dues?" "It was explained that one dollar of his dues money goes to National Headquarters in Washington, D. C., and another dollar goes to the state headquarters, and $1.00 is retained in the local barracks treasury. No one in the barracks is paid a salary and each member receives the monthly paper The National News which keeps him informed of the latest developments in veterans affairs. Unlike other veterans organizations, the World War I Veterans organization does not sponsor or put on money drives, and neither do the barracks operate clubs for money raising purposes. The main aim of the organization is to bring about legislation paying World War I veterans the $101.50 per month pension, plus $35.00 per month for those who need an attendant, and to see that the widows and dependents receive the benefits to which they are entitled according to existing laws. No veteran is charged any fee for preparation of any papers
