Parkway Progress

Balsam-Beech Gap Link Paving Is Now Underway

The Asheville Paving Company has started work on paving the 19-mile link of the Blue Ridge Parkway between Balsam Gap and Beech Gap. The section was graded last year.

Tentative plans are to have the project paved by September, and if the Bridge at Balsam is completed by that time, the link will be opened for the color season.

crosses US 19A-23 and the Southern Railway. At the present rate of progress, the bridge should be opened by the end of September.

The major portion of the grading of the link on the Parkway from Wagon Road Gap (US 276) to Pisgah Inn has been completed, and paving of the four-mile link is expected to be done this fall. This contract is held by Macon Construction Company.

The Park Service recently let a contract to Blythe Brothers of Charlotte, for building the Parkway link from Cuthroat Gap to Flat Laurel at Pisgah Inn, coming in from the east.

Workmen have also started excavating the site for the bridge to cross US 276 at Wagon Road Gap. The Parkway crosses the Federal Highway at this point.

Mr. John Anderson, Editor,
The Transylvania Times,
Brevard, N. C.

Dear Mr. Anderson:

It was most gratifying to see the prominent space you gave in last week's edition of the Times to Mr. Spicer's Memo to the City of Brevard and State Highway Department. I have been working on this same project with no success and would appreciate your giving this letter the same prominent spot. Maybe it will help.

Have you ever seen a Brevard Little Leaguer trying to cross Broad Street at French Broad? Have you ever seen a college student trying to make the same crossing? They risk their lives
