One of the most successful annual meetings of the Board of Trustees of Brevard College was held here last Friday.

"Continued expansion" might be considered the theme of the important meeting.

Plans were also made to match the $100,000 challenge grant with an additional $125,000 with which to pay for the outlined capital improvements.

Included in the new planning was the expenditure of $25,000 on new streets for the campus.

Boyd Explains Action On Bill In General Assembly

Fortune Cove Brevard, N. C. May 6, 1963

Mr. John I. Anderson, Editor Transylvania Times Brevard, North Carolina

Dear John:

In 1961 the citizens of Transylvania county approved a Flood Control program for their county by a vote of 2,442 for and 458 against. Since that time, much work has been accomplished from an engineering standpoint towards the completion of this project. For the past year it has been apparent that, in order for this program to move forward, it would be necessary to condemn certain lands and in order to do so, it would be necessary that the Flood Control committee be granted the power of eminent domain.

Rowan county was faced with the same problem and a bill was introduced by their Representative Clyde Harris granting the power of eminent domain to the Flood Control committee with certain safeguards contained in the bill. This bill was drawn after careful study to attain the same purposes that will be necessary in Transylvania county.

Some months ago at a meeting of the County Commissioners, I asked Mr. Leonard, in the presence of several people, if he would introduce a bill granting to the Flood Control Committee the right to eminent domain, and did not receive either a "yes" or "no" answer.

About six weeks ago I was in Raleigh with Jack Hudson, and standing on the sidewalk of the Sir Walter Hotel I again asked Mr. Leonard if he intended to draw and introduce a bill granting to the Flood Control committee the right of eminent domain. He again declined to answer. So, on at least two occasions I personally have asked Mr. Leonard to introduce this legislation and I know that others have also consulted him about this important matter.

Since the cut-off date on local legislation is rapidly approaching, and due to Mr. Leonard's refusal to agree to introduce legislation in order to obey the mandate of the people of this county, I felt it necessary to see what, if anything, I could accomplish towards securing this legislation. Therefore, Jack Potts and I went to Raleigh and —Turn to Page Three
