fast for the Men of the Presbyterian church, while Mrs. Kraay talked with the women at a coffee hour during the morning, and then they lectured at Brevard senior high school that afternoon. They illustrated their informative talks with colored slides. Dr. and Mrs. Kraay will return to Nigeria, Africa, in September. (Times Staff Photo)

Group To Move Forward With Canopy Plans

A steering committee has been named to move forward with plans for a canopy for the central business district of Brevard.

The matter was discussed at length at recent meetings of the directors of the Brevard Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants committee of that group.

The following have been named to serve:

Don W. Brown, John D. Clark, Charles W. Cook, William E. Edens, Al Martin, Dewey Nix, Ben Patterson, Robert H. Plummer, James E. Smith and Larry Turner.

William H. Keith, president of the Brevard Chamber of Commerce, told the members of the committee that he felt that they could count on the enthusiastic support of the entire membership.

Don Brown, chairman of the Merchants committee, will call the first meeting of the steering committee in the immediate future.

The committee is composed of seven members from the merchants group, plus a representative from the Planning Board and the Town Board.

"BUGS ABOUT BEATLES" is the theme of the bulletin board in Mrs. Ray Winchester's room at Brevard senior high school. She feels that this latest teen-age rage display inspires her students while they are studying.

The attractive and colorful bulletin board was designed and erected by Marla Hooper, Sharon Parker and Bob Colwell. (Times Staff Photo)

Work Expected To Be Started In Early Spring

The American Thread company will receive bids on Monday, March 23rd, for construction of the new plant at the Calvert site near Rosman.

The bids will be evaluated immediately, and according to company officials, the contract could be let by April 1st.

It is hoped that construction could then be started immediately.

The contract will be in five phases:

- (1) The Building
- (2) Air conditioning
- (3) Fire protection
- (4) Electrical work
- (5) Electrical switch gear work

Officials of the company also said today that they have been informed by the State Health department and the Stream Sanitation commission that all necessary permits regarding the construction and use of water of the French Broad River will be issued by the time that construction is started.

President E. B. Shaw announced earlier this year that his company had purchased the Calvert site, and he anticipated the new mill being in full operation by late 1965.

The modern building will be a one-story structure, fully air-conditioned and will produce a variety of thread yarn products.

The company expects to employ around 300 persons.

Like most of American Thread's other spinning mills, the new mill will ship the bulk of its output to the company's 500,000 square foot Sevier plant near Marion for finishing.

About the local plant, President Shaw said:

"We are building this new facility because we firmly believe in the future of the textile industry in this country. Our nation's population is growing and the market for textiles is growing with it. We intend to serve this market in..."

Little Theatre Hold Try-Outs Friday Evening

Brevard Little Theatre try-outs for "Roman Candle" will be held in the courthouse this Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Roles will be open for 12 men and 3 women.

This uproarious Broadway comedy, which starred Robert Sterling, Julia Meade and Inger Stevens, (of Farmer's Daughter fame), is packed with enjoyment for everyone, officials of BLT say.

The story centers on the romantic entanglements of young scientist-professor, Mark Baxter, who alternates interest between the Army's missile launching program "Operation Snowball" and a female twosome with intent on marriage.

The female rears are rich and beautiful Eleanor Winston, a U.S. Senator's daughter, with ambitious interests for Mark, and Liz Brown, an shattering blonde, gifted with Extra Sensory Perception. Liz uses this unusual ability to predict everything in military secrets, including the winning horse at a race track.

Pat Fulehan will direct the production. —Turn to Page Seven

432 Transylvanians Reported On Payrolls Of Government

How many Transylvania county residents are holding down government jobs—Federal, state and local? How many of them are connected with the public administration part of government?

A special report, just released by the Department of Commerce, presents a social and economic portrait of workers in the United States and of the hundreds of types of work they perform. It is called "Occupational Characteristics."

From this and from other data on the subject, compiled by the Census Bureau, it appears that there are 432 local residents employed in civilian capacities by various governmental bodies.

Of these, 98 work for agencies of government whose activities come under the head of public administration. Included in this category are those with legislative, judicial and executive functions and, in addition, those in the postal service.

In terms of the total number of working people in Transylvania County, the proportion in public administration is equivalent to 19 per 1,000 workers.

There are many local people, besides these, who are in government employ in other capacities, outside the field of public administration. —Turn to Page Eight

In Two-Day Session

WNC Rescue College Will Convene Here, September

Brevard has been selected as the site for a Western North Carolina Rescue College conference and training session on September 26th and 27th of this year, Captain J. C. Rowe announces today.

The official announcement came from Jim Finison, assistant director of Fire and Rescue Training, Department of Insurance, Raleigh.

Greenville was selected as the site in Eastern North Carolina.

During the first five years of the Rescue College, the following courses will be taught:

Knots, fire extinguishers, casualty handling, artificial respiration and height rescue.

Each class will have classroom and training sessions, and the teachers are graduates of instructor schools.

Captain Rowe says the local rescue squad is proud to have the rescue college here for the 1964 annual session, and he says that representatives will come from a wide area of North and South Carolina.

Discussion At Planning Board Meeting Lively

The proposed land use program and extra-territorial zoning were the main items of business that came up for discussion at the meeting of the Brevard Planning and Zoning Board Tuesday night in the court house.

Several hundred persons filled the court room to take part in the discussions that took place during the lengthy session.

The Board granted preliminary approval to Russell Armentrout to have a commercial subdivision located on the Asheville highway just beyond the railroad crossing.

Dan Vismore, staff planner with the WNC Regional Planning commission, next presented to the group the land-use proposal that has been in the planning stage for some time.

Mr. Vismore thoroughly explained the program and pointed out the commission's suggestions for land use in and around Brevard. A lengthy question and answer period —Turn to Page Eight
