Grimesdale Farm Is Selected As The Site

For the greater part of two years, a small group of local citizens has been working quietly but steadily towards a difficult and elusive goal. That goal—an 18-hole golf course and country club for Transylvania county—now seems almost within their reach, according to Bill Keith, spokesman for the group.

"From the beginning, we have had only one site in mind," Mr. Keith said, "and we now have the land under a short-term option."

This location, known as the Grimesdale farm, is just off the Wilson road, and less than three miles from the center of Brevard. It is ideally suited for a golf course, with sufficient cleared land to accommodate an 18-hole golf course with practice area, a house, a swimming pool and tennis courts.

"It has been our thought that anyone interested in developing the acreage surrounding the proposed golf course, should be willing to give sufficient land for a golf course, if the land owners could be assured that this course would be built. It is now the intention of the land —Turn to Page Six

To Better Serve

Radio Station WPNF Seeking Increase In Power From FCC

Radio Station WPNF, Brevard, has made formal application with the Federal Communications commission for a daytime increase in power.

The application was filed by Mrs. Ed M. Anderson, president, and John I. Anderson, secretary and treasurer.

Actually, the application was filed in September, 1964, but the FCC announced just this week that it would be processed in February. The delay was due to the heavy backlog of work of the commission.

It is believed that approval will be given the application shortly after the February processing.

The power increase would be from 250 watts to one kilowatt or 1,000 watts, enabling the station to better serve the greater Brevard area and all of Transylvania County throughout the seasonal daytime hours of operation.

It would be necessary to reduce power to the present 250 watts before daybreak and after sundown.

A large group of broadcasters presently operating under these conditions has for some time been seeking to have the F.C.C. allow the stations operate with full power of one kilowatt both day and night, but thus far such approval has not been granted.

Said Busy Place

McCrary Is New President Of Center, Goals Cited

Tom McCrary has been elected president of the Transylvania Community Center for the New Year.

Other officers are:

Lloyd Burhans - vice chairman

Mrs. Emmett K. McLarty - secretary

Tom Ramsay - treasurer, and Jack Mitchell and Mel Everingham, directors.

The center was a busy place during 1964, the new president states.

"We are looking forward to another good year, and much renovation work will be continued," Mr. McCrary declared.

The officers said they were especially pleased with the new directors, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Calaway, and their assistants, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Alderman.

Installation of mirrowall has been completed in some areas of the center, and plans call for installing new light fixtures. A new furnace was also installed.

The Teenagers probably use the center more than anyone else, however several groups meet regularly in the various departments of the building.

These include the Carolina Cloggers, the local chapter of retired persons. Kaylene's dancers, the reorganized Art League, Brevard Little Theatre, and various Garden clubs.

The officers are now giving serious thought to the employment of a recreational director for Transylvania.

"This will be a major goal in '65," they state.

Building Permit Regulations Are Cited By Town

New regulations affecting the issuance of building permits were announced Monday by Town Building and Plumbing inspector S. L. Cappell. Since January 4th, permits are required before any building work is begun anywhere within the Town and within an area one mile in all directions from the Town limits.

The award, a citation and medal, was presented by Rev. Alfred D. Rhyne, pastor.

The Pro Deo Et Patria, or God and Country, award, is the highest award in scouting given by The Lutheran Church in America.

To qualify, a scout under the direction of his pastor must learn Luther's Catechism, including the Ten Commandments, Creed, Lord's Prayer and a knowledge of the Sacraments.

He must seek new members for Sunday School and youth groups, must show evidence of systematic giving to the local church and in support of missions, know the liturgy of the church, know the significance of altar and its furnishings, and a knowledge of the church year. In addition he must give 150 hours of service to the church and community, and complete a special project. For his project Alessi wrote a 2000 word essay on the Reformation.

In addition to all of the above requirements, the scout must meet all requirements of the scouting program and must have attained the First Class rank.

Alessi is a member of Troop 701. Robert L. Daniels, his scoutmaster, and Mr. Rhyne were high in their praise of his accomplishment. Mr. —Turn to Page Three Application forms for requesting a permit may be obtained from Mr. Cappell at Town Hall between 9:00 and 10:00 a. m. each day, and by appointment. Applicants will be required to fill out the application and submit it, together with an accurately scaled map of the lot or parcel of land with the building shown on it. All front, side, and rear yard dimensions should be shown, together with bearings and lengths of the property boundaries.

The plat should show the street or road on which the property is located and the zone in which it is situated. Mr. Cappell explained that application forms would be given to builders, contractors and others regularly engaged in building work, for their convenience in obtaining their permits. Permits will be required for new construction and for additions to old work. The zoning ordinance places particular emphasis on the location of commercial structures, and any person expecting to build this type of building is urged to see Mr. Cappell well before he plans to begin construction.
