

HENRY C. McDONALD, A.I.A., and his architectural firm have received an outstanding citation for the design of the Mars Hill Methodist church. The award was made through the Randolph E. DuMont Design program, which promotes a high level of excellence in the de-

Fugitive Gets Tired Of Running, Gves Up Here

Some fugitives run and run and run.

But Michael J. Wader, of San Francisco, decided to give himself up when he arrived in Brevard.

Mayor Raymond F. Bennett says that speaks well for the Brevard police department.

Wader walked into the police station Monday night and said he wanted to give himself up. He was tired of running.

On May 4th he stole a car in San Francisco and began making his way across the country. He was on parole for kidnapping.

Before reaching Transylvania and wrecking a car near See-Off, he had stolen three vehicles.

He is now in the federal section of the prison in Asheville awaiting trial by federal authorities.

Music Center Looking Forward To Best Season In Its History

Largest Faculty, Staff Named, Enrollment Tops

The Brevard Music Center, the Southeast's oldest summer institution in the arts, has announced seventeen major faculty and staff changes for its 1967 season. Now in its 31st year of operation, the Music Center's season begins on July 5th.

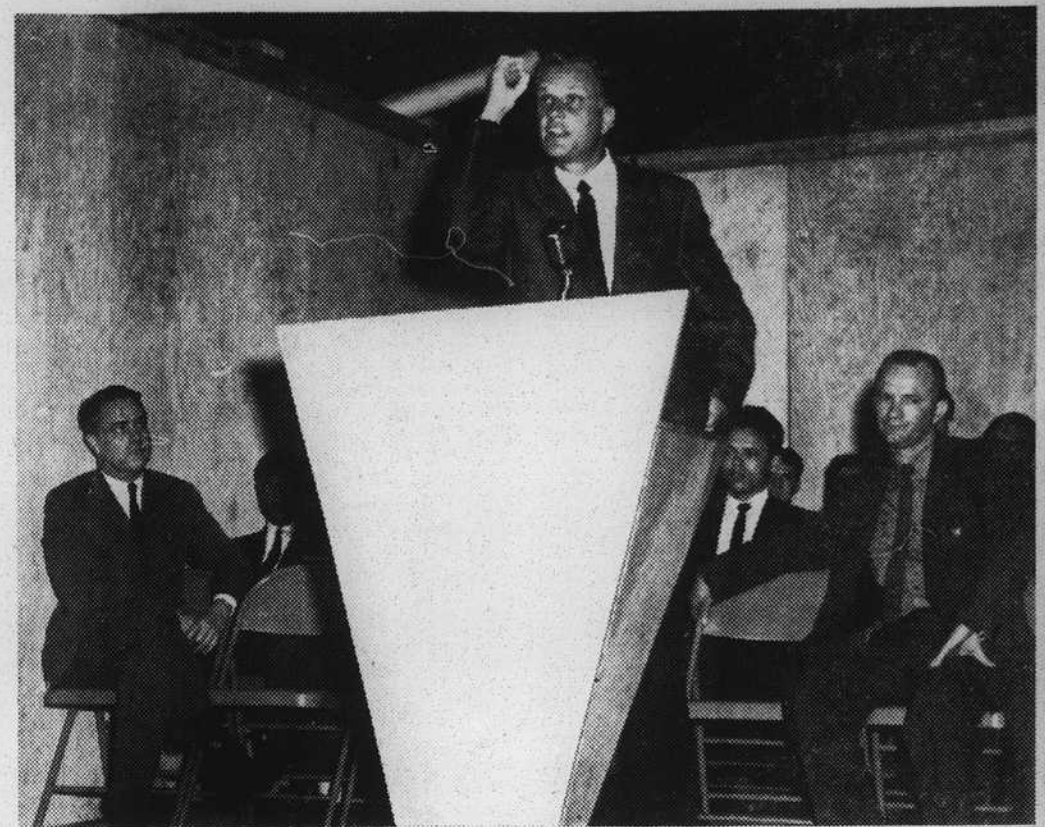

Commenting on the appointments, Center Director Henry Janice stated that "the Music Center's expanding program and larger enrollments have necessitated the addition of new faculty and staff as well as the replacement of some who have taken other positions. We are particularly proud of the fact that our new members are from established institutions and major orchestras around the country."

Heading the list of new faculty is Dr. Ward Woodbury, head of the music department at Rollins College, and director of Florida's famed Bach Festival. Woodbury will head the choral activities at the Center, replacing William Partridge who is beginning doctoral studies this summer.

John Huxford, formerly director of the Pacific Music Camp in California is joining the Music Center as Director of Public Relations. Huxford is presently on the faculty at Valdosta State College in Georgia. Former Public Relations Director Frank Little is also beginning doctoral studies this summer.

Other appointments are violist Hugh Partridge of the Indianapolis Symphony, violinist Michel Bernard of the Birmingham Symphony, flutist Albert Saurini of the Indianapolis Symphony, Mr. and Mrs. John Genova of the Mobile Symphony, cellist Ted Hoyle of Yale University, Ralph Long of Jacksonville University, Barbara Wood of Columbia, Missouri, Beverly Horn and Donald Wiggins of Converse College, singer Jane Murray of Tampa, Florida, trumpeter Adel Sanchez of the Kansas City Philharmonic, set designer Bonnie Rasmussen of Buena Vista, Virginia and Dean of Women, Joan Houck, of San Francisco, California.

The Music Center's staff numbers over 100 teachers and others who service the educational and performance program. The seven-week season will once again feature a festival of concerts, operas, and shows during the months of July and August.

DR. BILLY GRAHAM is pictured above addressing Corpsmen and guests of the Schenck Job Corps Center here in Transylvania last Saturday morning. The world-famed evangelist and R. Sargent Shriver, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity and brother-in-law of the late President John F. Kennedy, paid a visit here and to several other sections of WNC last Saturday. Both Dr. Graham and Mr. Shriver, seated at left, spoke to the group. They were introduced by Donald Lee Moore, chairman of the Transylvania County Board of Commissioners. After a tour of the Job Corps and its facilities, the two men departed via helicopter for the remainder of their trip through the mountains. William P. Thomas, center director at Schenck, is pictured sitting at the right. (Times Staff Photo)

Many Activities Set

Transylvania's Community Center Undergoing Repairs

The Transylvania Community center building is undergoing extensive repairs to improve the appearance for use by county citizens.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps is supplying labor for painting and general cleanup items. Each Saturday, a group of 4 to 8 Youth Corps boys and girls have been working from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. According to center directors, results of their fine efforts are beginning to show.

Major repair items are being undertaken as funds are available. Donations from the Lions Club, in memory of Dr. Sader, first TCC chairman, and the AARP have helped finance window and ceiling repairs.

An outside cleanup was conducted by several AARP members. In addition, they planted and fertilized shrubbery. Overall improvement and maintenance of landscaping will be coordinated by Mrs. Becky Macfie.

A series of general interest movie films has been arranged for showing every two weeks by Miss Beverly Taylor, film chairman. These films are being obtained from the North Carolina State Board of Health, General Motors Corporation, Southern Bell Telephone Company, the Du Pont Company and various other sources. All films will be shown on Saturdays at 1:00 p.m.

The next film showing will be Saturday, May 20th, at 1 p.m. The title is "Are You Ready For Marriage — Choosing For Happiness." The N. C. State Board of Health recommends this film to young people anticipating marriage.

A new activity at the Center is baton twirling lessons for children every Saturday by Miss Kitty Ann McCall of Hazelwood. She is assisted by Miss Pat Smart, of Brevard.

Miss McCall is a majorette at Tuscola high. She taught baton twirling at Brevard College last summer. Beginners' classes are from 11 a.m. to 12 noon. The advanced class is from 12 noon to 1 p.m. Interested parents may contact Pat Smart at 883-5384 for enrollment of their children. A baton recital will be held during the summer.

A panel discussion on Vietnam and several speakers on general interest subjects are being planned. NASA's presentation of the spacemobile will be sought as soon as it is in this area according to Gary Dennis, Space and Science Program chairman. Each of these programs will be open to the public. Definite plans will be announced in advance of these presentations.

The need for a year-round community program is being investigated. A committee is surveying existing programs and unfilled community recreation needs to help determine a course of action. At present, there are no plans for a summer recreation program. —Turn to Page Five

Lions To Hold Door-To-Door Broom Sale

Members of the Brevard and Rosman Lions clubs will be holding their annual door-to-door broom sale this weekend.

The two clubs will canvass their respective communities on Thursday and Friday evenings and all day Saturday of this week.

The Lions state that they will have all kinds of brooms available, and they urge everyone to "buy a broom when a Lion". —Turn to Page Four

Cost Of Rearing An 18-Year Old, $25,000

By Staff Writer

How much of an investment does the average 18-year-old youngster in Transylvania represent?

What has it cost his parents to rear him from infancy to age 18?

Most parents haven't the slightest idea. They don't think of their children in terms of dollars and cents. Beyond knowing that the outlay at certain periods has been large, sometimes staggering, they have never thought about the total cost.

According to studies along this line, made by the Institute of Life Insurance, the Agriculture Department and others, the cost varies greatly from family to family but is closely related to income.

On the average, about four years of family earnings are spent in raising a child to age 18.

The studies show that where net income is in the $6,000 to $8,000 range, as it is with the average Transylvania County family, the outlay per child is approximately $25,000.

Among families in the $12,000 to $14,000 category, the expenditures are in the neighborhood of $51,000 per child, it is found.

On the other hand, those with low incomes, operating on a much tighter budget, spend considerably less than this.

In most families the largest single item of expense is food. The figures show that a girl consumes about $7,600 worth in the 18 years, based on present price levels, but that a boy outdoes her in that department by at least $500.

For the average-income family, other major items of cost are listed, based on the national studies. They include clothing, $2,850, transportation, $3,700, and medical care, close to $2,000.

Added to this are recreation, education, housing and personal care.

Fortunately, these costs are distributed over the 18 years. Not so are the medical fees, hospital bills and other expenses in connection with the child's birth.

How much does it all add up to for the 370 boys and girls in Transylvania county who are becoming 18 this year?

On the basis of average cost per child locally, it comes to a grand total of $9,250,000. And that is only up to the point at which they are ready to enter college.
