Recital Shows Imagination

The Modern Dance class held a recital Monday, May 15, in the gym. The class of nine girls had been studying dance under Mrs. Barbara Daye for a semester.

The girls all did an admirable job, and several dances were especially good. Marigay Lesh combined a bit of ballet and acrobatics as she danced to "Nightingale." The most truly modern dance number was that of Linda Nichols. Her interpretive dance centered around a sacrificial offering.

Several girls had quite catchy music, such as Janice Deleman's "The Stripper" and Jenny Munro's "Peter Gunn Theme." Patsy Crawford danced to the rhythmic tune, "Patricia." Carol Clayton did an especially good job of keeping to the fast tempo of her number.

The costumes were all very colorful and imaginative. Judy Armentrout made a vibrant "Girl from Ipanema," while Sandy Lucas appeared as "A Summer Breeze" in flowing pink. Becky Burhans made a charming butterfly in green chiffon.

After the individual numbers the class and Mrs. Daye did a group dance entitled "Tequila." The black tights and brightly colored shells added greatly to the effect.

The audience was glad to donate ten cents to Save-A-Child in order to see the entertaining and imaginative modern dance recital.

Students Aid In Planning

The student body is now being represented on various faculty committees, one being the Development Committee, with Mrs. Grace Munro, Chairman.

This committee met with Mr. Henry McDonald, the college architect, student personnel involved in the new building, and several student representatives—Kathy Wayant, Gregg Nelson, and Jenny Munro. The building under discussion was the Sims Student Center Building, which is to be in the old library building.

The ideas bandied around in When you think of prescriptions, think of VARNER'S. adv clude having a large "living room" area in addition to lounges, a small chapel, dancing area, rooms for pool and ping pong tables, and a TV room. Also, it was suggested that the soda shop have a grill in it, and that the book store carry a selection of popular paperbacks. There will also be an outside door leading to the post office so that one can enter at any time. An unusual feature suggested was that the flat roof be used as a sunbathing area.

The committee said that the ideas given by the student body were good. They will try to work in as many of these suggestions as possible.

Zumstein Wins Scholarship

Nathaniel Zumstein, a Brevard College music major, was awarded a six and one-half week full scholarship to the Brevard Music Center starting on July 2.

The scholarship given by J. P. Stevens, Inc., is not the first for Nathaniel since he attended the Center in 1965 and 1966 under various scholarships. Nathaniel, who played with the Asheville Symphony this past winter, won the scholarship over thirteen others for his performance in piano and violin at the East Henderson High School.

They Hunt Workers

Third Floor of the Classroom Building has had some interesting and unusual guests lately. The students are beginning to wonder who will be next.

The latter part of last week, Mr. Settle of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) was looking for qualified secretaries. Last year Kathy Washman and Gail Jones accepted positions with that organization, and he was looking for more like them.

Mr. Brackett of the State Department climbed up the stairs this week on the same mission. And then, there are also the representatives from local firms, who are always checking BC for secretarial help.

Mrs. Munro says, "Every time I hear a phone ring or an unfamiliar footstep on the stairs, I wonder who is needing a secretary. It is a privilege to help place well-qualified students."

HENRY C. McDONALD, college architect, presents library keys to Mrs. Marion Craig, representative of the Library Committee of the Trustees.
