Damages High

Heavy Rains Causing Much Flooding Throughout County

Bottomlands in Transylvania are flooding and many rural roads are covered with water because of the heavy rains since Sunday morning.

Many, many residents of the community are reporting flooded basements and leaking roofs as the rains continue to come down.

And the weatherman does not foresee a let-up in the heavy shower activity until later this weekend.

At presstime on Wednesday, nearly 10 inches of rain have fallen here since Sunday morning.

Daily rainfalls recorded at the official weather station at WPNF are as follows:

Sunday—5.2, Monday—8.7, Tuesday—3.92, and Wednesday, until noon—4.01.

Harry F. Morgan, Rosman's weatherman, also reports that approximately 10 inches have fallen there this week.

Flooding is occurring in areas along the French Broad river between Brevard and Rosman.

The flood stage at Rosman is 8 feet, and at one time Wednesday morning, the French Broad was at 9.48

The following roads in Transylvania were reported closed at presstime:

Island Ford road, Wilson road, Merrill lane, Hannah Ford road, Old US Highway 64 (east) and Eagles Nest road.

Primary highways in the county were still open at noon Wednesday, and they are expected to remain open as the rainfall decreases.

These roads include:

Brevard to Rosman

Brevard to Greenville
Brevard to Asheville and to Hendersonville.

Flash flooding will occur along the French Broad today and tomorrow, and residents along the river are warned of impending danger.

Already much damage has been reported to crops in Transylvania, and as the rains continue, the losses will be greater and greater.

Fences, farm roads and smaller bridges are also suffering extensive damages.
