

Governor Moore Endorses United Fund Drives In North Carolina Towns

GOVERNOR DAN K. MOORE is pictured endorsing United Fund campaigns for North Carolina with

W. B. Harrison, Rocky Mount, President, Carolinas United Community Services.

Statement On The Need Is Issued

(Editor's note — The following is a statement by Governor Dan K. Moore endorsing over eighty community United Way Campaigns this fall. The combined goals in North Carolina will exceed $10,500,000.)

In late September and early October, United Way Campaigns will get underway in 76 North Carolina communities. Overall, something in excess of $11,000,000 will be sought and raised to support many vital programs of service. We value the contribution being made by our Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, our Y.M.C.A.'s and other youth serving organizations. We fully expect that essential services will be readily available to troubled families, to the aged and the homeless, to the mentally ill and the physically incapacitated, and to a host of others who require special assistance in a time of need. We can feel fortunate in our capability to provide necessary services to alleviate suffering and need today while seeking solutions through research and community action to avoid similar problems in the years ahead.

In 1967, we witnessed the overwhelming effects of natural disaster. Floods, fires, tornadoes and hurricanes caused major damage and disruption in many areas of our country. The continuing conflict in Viet Nam has increased the demands for service from the U. S. O. and the American Red Cross. Our commitment to those who serve must be the equal of theirs in every respect.

Through your support of last year's United Way Campaigns, these many services on so many fronts were made possible. In effect, you were there whenever your dollars were at work.

For 1968, I again ask you to lend your full support to this united effort. Be on hand when and where the need arises. It is important that we be there — doing our share. I commend the United Way to you and hope you will join me in welcoming the campaign volunteer when he calls on you at your home or place of business.

Signed: Dan Moore

Major Houser Returning To Vietnam, Second Tour Of Duty

Major Houston P. Houser, III, left Brevard, Georgia, Sept. 10th for his second tour in Vietnam.

Son of Colonel and Mrs. H. P. Houser, of Brevard, Major Houser has been assigned to the 101st Airborne Division which will involve him in the seeking out, finding and destroying of North Vietnamese units.

Each member of the 101st Division in Vietnam is a volunteer to Vietnam to this unit.

Major Houser began his first tour in Vietnam in November, 1964. For the first six months he served as a sub-sector advisor to the district chief in the running of the sector involving some 75,000 people. As the military advisor, he was concerned with the organization, training and employment of all military personnel.

He remarked that "this was a real interesting task as we kept the wheels on the local level turning."

His work concerned the security of the people in his designated area. Schools, health provisions, commercial facilities and agricultural centers are developed with the anticipation that these good works will produce good intelligence and better results militarily.

The remainder of his tour was spent in the special forces headquarters as a psychological operations officer. This position involved the news or propaganda from the United States' standpoint to explain why we are there. Major Houser's job was to prepare guidance papers and tailor each one to fit the four different corps in Vietnam as the areas are so different ethnically and geographically.

He recalls that this too was a challenge for him in his efforts to serve his country.

A graduate of the United States Military Academy, the class of 1957, he has commanded infantry units and served as a weapons instructor at Ft. Benning. He was stationed in Germany for three years where he served as a company commander. He completed the army career officers' course at Fort Benning, and a special forces officers' course at Fort Bragg. He plans to complete his Master's degree in business administration.

Major Houser's wife and two daughters, Cindy Sue and Stephanie, are living in Columbus, Georgia while he is making this tour.
