Questions And Answers

Q. As a college student, I work part-time each semester and full-time during college vacations. The social security contributions coming out of my pay could help me meet expenses. Why deduct from my earnings now, considering the number of full-time years in the future I'll have to pay? Will I really get my money's worth over the long run?

A. You and other young workers — part-time or full-time — are getting valuable social security retirement, survivors, and disability insurance protection worth MORE than the social security contributions you pay. If you have 1½ years or more of recent work on your social security record, you and your family may count on monthly benefits if you become disabled. And your family would get monthly benefits if you died. Earnings of as little as $50 in any 3-month calendar quarter will assure you of credit toward valuable insurance protection.

Q. A fellow student tells me that social security has the right to grant or withhold our student benefits if our money needs are adequate. Is he right?

A. No, he isn't. Chances are your friend has social security mixed up with public assistance payments, which are based on actual need. Your RIGHT to student benefits and the amount of the payments are based on your parent's record of work — and earnings — under social security. Benefits are paid to you as a matter of your parent's EARNED right, without any test on need and without regard to nonwork income or other assets.

Q. I will not finish my college work until I'm 23. Can an exception be made to permit me to receive student benefits until then?

A. Sorry, but no exceptions can be made to the age 22 cutoff for student benefits. Your benefits are intended to replace some of the support you lost because of your parent's death, retirement, or disability. The benefits are intended to be paid as long as it is reasonable to assure that you would be supported by your family. The law sets age 23 as the upper limit. However, there are a number of other public programs and some private ones that offer financial assistance to college students. You may want to write to the Office of Education, U. S. Department of

Q. If I don't get my social security check on the 3rd of the month, what should I do?

A. If you have been getting your checks regularly and you know of no reason why the check should be late, notify your social security office after the sixth of the month. This allows time for you to get the check if it was delayed in the mail.

If there might be another reason for the delay, such as a recent change in your address or other adjustments in your records, wait about two weeks; then let your social security office know that you have not received your check.

13 Days Of Shopping Now Remain

Including today, we'd like to be the first to inform Christmas shoppers that you have exactly 13 shopping days until Christmas. That's counting December 24th, too.

It's a time for rejoicing, mothers, fathers, for we know you are looking forward with much anticipation to the numerous treks into town, up and down the busy streets, and into the crowded stores.

But take heart! It will be over all too soon for those certain - climbing, house demolition teams we refer to as "children." Then it's back to school and once again out of mother's hair.

Shop Brevard first!

The number of veterans taking police, fireman and other "protective service" training under the GI Bill increased by 90 percent during FY 70. Police and fire departments interested in setting up a program should contact their nearest VA office; interested veterans should apply at local police and fire departments.

This the 12th day of November, 1970.

Final Exams Begin December 10; Christmas Vacation To Follow

Only six more days and reading day will be here. That also means only six days until exams begin because the first exam is scheduled for reading day night.

Those who have never taken exams at Brevard College have quite an experience coming up. These finals run from the tenth to the eighteenth of December. They are scheduled for three hours each. A student will often find he can finish the exam in less than the allotted time, but sometimes it takes longer. Regardless of the time spent on each individual exam, the student is free to go home as soon as he completes his last exam.

Six days does not seem like much time to prepare for exams; but for the student who has kept up with assignments all along, there is no real problem. After exams, the Brevard College students have a pleasure that many other college students do not have and that is three long weeks of vacation without having to open a book. That's a real vacation. Good luck on exams and Happy Holiday.

BY BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: Refraction of light.

NEEDED: A deep glass dish, flashlight and support, mirror, water, milk, smoke, a slit in cardboard.

DO THIS: Set up the experiment as shown, so that the flashlight beam goes through the slit and into the water at an angle. A few drops of milk in the water and a little smoke in the air will scatter some of the light so its path can be seen.

WHY DO THE RAYS BEND? The speed of light varies in different substances, higher in air than in water. When the beam hits the water at an angle the side nearest the water is slowed down first, the side farthest from the water last. This causes the beam to bend, like a sled when one runner hits sand while the other is on snow. When the beam comes out of the water after reflecting from the mirror, it bends the other way.

The mirror is placed in the bottom of the dish, under the water. The author used smoke from a cigar to cause the scattering of the light in the air.
