Transylvania's Official Census Is 19,713, Gain Now 20.4 Per Cent

New Brevard Total 5,243, 7.9% Increase

The 1970 Census is now official, and Transylvania, with a 20.4% gain, ranked second among the 16 Western North Carolina Counties.

Jackson, with a gain of 21.4%, was the leader.

The official figures for Transylvania are as follows:

1970—19,713
1960—16,372
Gain—3,341.

Brevard also had a nice gain during the 10-year period from 1960 to 1970, but not as great as the county as a whole.

However, it is pointed out that the areas surrounding Brevard have grown rapidly during the past 10 years.

The official figures for Brevard are:

1970—5,243
1960—4,857

Gain—386 or 7.9 per cent, age-wise.

The population gain in other counties surrounding Transylvania is as follows: Haywood, 3%; Buncombe 11.5%; and Henderson 18.4%.

County leaders are elated that Transylvania's gain was as great as it was.

It is also pointed out that if more of the industrial employees who work in Transylvania but live in adjoining counties resided here, the county's gain would have been tremendous.

But the fine gain indicates that Transylvania offers inducements that attract people to settle here. One leader said he hopes that more of our young people are returning here to live.

Undoubtedly, more and more —Turn to Page Six

County's Coordinated Child Care Program Given Praise

The Federal Regional IV Committee of the Atlanta Office of Child Development, has granted initial recognition to the Transylvania County Coordinated Child Care Program (4-C Program) as having met all requirements in the development phase. A Community Coordinated Child Care (4-C) Program is a system under which local public and private agencies interested in day care and pre-school programs develop procedures for cooperating with one another on program service, staff development, and administrative activities.

The Regional Committee expressed that they were greatly impressed with the excellent community cooperation as reflected in the organizational structure and agreements to coordinate, plan and mobilize community resources for children. The Committee cited the achievements in Transylvania County as examples of what can be accomplished when there is commitment to meet a community's child care needs. The Transylvania County Coordinated Child Care Committee was organized in April 1970 and requested recognition for the program in September 1970. The committee is composed of public agencies interested in day care services, community organizations, lay citizens and parents. At the present time, the Executive Committee is responsible for the administrative structure. The 4-C Committee hopes to enlarge day care services in the county by opening several centers making the services available to the entire county. Only one center in the county is licensed to operate under the 4-C Program at this time.

The First Adventure Day Care Center located in the First United Methodist church, Brevard, opened June 1, 1970. It is fully licensed by the N. C. Department of Social Services —Turn to Page Six

The Times was described as an excellent newspaper with

Sale Of Tags Reported Slow

The sale of license tags for automobiles and trucks is slow, according to Mrs. Jeanne Hunter, manager of the tag office on Jordan street.

"Come in soon and purchase your 1971 tag to avoid the rush during the last week of the renewal period," Mrs. Hunter urges.

The green and white plates with the prefix SM on passenger cars must be displayed on vehicles by midnight on Feb. 15th, 1971. This also applies for trucks and trailers.

Mrs. Hunter also asks motorists to have their liability insurance information on the reverse side of the renewal card all filled out before coming to purchase a tag.

The name of the insurance company (not the agent), the policy number and the signature of the owner as it appears on the card must be completed before a tag can be purchased.

"If this is done before you come into the office, it saves time and will prevent the forming of long waiting lines," Mrs. Hunter declares.

emphasis on news and features. About the winning of the award, Editor Anderson says:

"The first responsibility of a newspaper is to gather, prepare and disseminate all the news on an unbiased, accurate basis, without fear or favor.

"While each member of the staff of The Transylvania Times is naturally quite gratified that we are again recognized by outside judges as producers of a top-flight newspaper, we feel no sense of gloating nor any tendency to complacency.

"Rather do we consider the latest award as a challenge to continue to publish the best and most modern weekly newspaper possible.

"The award received by The Times is a compliment to the staff, and more particularly, it is a result of the fine cooperation and support of our readers, our advertisers, our correspondents and the citizens generally of Brevard and Transylvania county."
