Or - Behind The News From Washington

By - John Chamberlain

Ralph Nader, it turns out, is becoming the idol of the concerned young. Instead of following Mark Rudd and Bernardine Doherty into the ranks of the nihilistic Weathermen, they have decided to complete their education, preferably in law, with a view to political careers as tributes for consumerism. While this is better than preparing for a life of bomb throwing, it involves a question that is not easily settled: Where does the will to protect the consumer for his own good degenerate into a busybodyism that makes life intolerable for civilized beings?

Mr. Wayman became involved in his meaningful hobby because of the death of a close friend in a highway mishap. His four-man teams (each consisting of a trained investigator, a behavioral scientist, an engineer, and a photographer) have been combing the roads of Pennsylvania and other states since 1967, and have now come up with a mass of information about 4,571 accidents. The general conclusions are still tentative (Mr. Wayman doesn't trust small samples), but they do not support some of the wilder claims of the Naderites about the "unsafe at any speed" aspects of the motor car.

I have always been of two minds about Nader; I don't regard him as either god or devil. The country is undoubtedly in his debt for promoting the use of seat belts, which might not have been made part of the required automotive equipment if it hadn't been for his agitation. On the other hand, Nader has promoted an overemphasis on the danger arising from mechanical defects in the run-of-the-mill Detroit car. It is still the driver who is to blame for most of the accidents.

Item One: vehicle defects or mechanical failures such as faulty steering gears and stuck accelerators occur in less than one per cent of fatal auto accidents.

Item Two: the chances of an "unrestrained person" (i.e., one without a seat belt) being killed in an accident are four times as great for occupants wearing belts.

This puts Naderism in perspective: his "raiders" should lay off their busybodyism about the car itself and concentrate on educating the driver to use the seat belt, which is now standard equipment with each automobile.

The Highway Safety Foundation thinks its studies point to a defective conception of driver training. The neophyte driver is not taught to respond properly in emergencies involving skids and blowouts. He doesn't know about the phenomenon of "hydroplaning" in which the car's front wheels actually leave the road at higher speeds on wet pavements. Drunken driving is, of course, an old story; half the deaths come from this. There isn't enough evidence to tell us much about the effects of drug abuse on driving, but this will no doubt come as the in-cop investigation continues. The trouble with obtaining drug evidence is that it

The name of Richard D. Wayman is by no means as famous as Ralph Nader's. You don't see young law school undergraduates foregoing a Washington summer as one of Nader's Raiders to become a Wayman Highwayman. Wayman doesn't invite young people to indulge themselves in the self-righteous delights of busybodyism. He has merely set up a Highway Safety Foundation as an independent, non-profit organization (headquarters at Mansfield, Ohio) that has undertaken to investigate 10,000 accidents in the hope that it will enable safety engineers, road builders, automobile manufacturers, lawmakers, and psychiatrists to do something practical about the accident rate.

Singing Set At Pisgah Forest Church Of God

There will be a singing at the Pisgah Forest Church of God this coming Saturday night, April 17th.

Rev. Bert Dodson invites all singers and listeners to come. The singing will start at 7:00 o'clock in the evening.

It doesn't necessarily show in the blood.

Easter Observance Quiet In Cathey's Creek Area

Cathey's Creek—Easter was very quietly observed in our section with many egg hunts for the children.

A bingo party was held at Red Hill Center last Saturday night with a nice bunch of local people attending. The treasurer reports the center to be in good shape financially with all bills up to date and plans for further landscaping and brick-laying to be continued and the land seeded at the earliest convenience.

An egg hunt was held at the old Morgan Mill on Sunday afternoon for the folks at Red Hill center. A nice time was enjoyed and all 87 eggs were found by the energetic children and adult supervisors. We wish to thank the Nicholson family for the use of their property for the egg hunt. James Eubanks won an Easter basket for finding the most eggs. Frica Orr found the prize egg and won a school pencil set, with little Willie Mae Orr finding the second most she won a box of Easter Candy.

We wish for everyone to keep in mind that Frank Fenwick will visit Red Hill Center and show slides of the Holy Land with each being identified. All the members wish to invite any and all to this occasion, which will be held on April 24th at 7:30 p.m.

We are glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Russell Eubanks and Mrs. Rosa Barton return home from Florida. Mrs. Eubanks' sister, Canopus Tillman, accompanied them home for a visit with her father Lon Barton and other relatives.

Junior Clayton was rushed to the local hospital on Monday. We wish for him a very speedy recovery. Also Ward Breedlove seems to be somewhat improved. The Junior Clayton family have been ill with flu, etc. They are improved at this writing.

Luelle Goguen left Wednesday to spend the holidays with her family in Fitchburg, Mass. She plans to return on Wednesday to her home on Ross road.

Visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Breedlove last Sunday were a brother, Carl Breedlove and a nephew, the Rev. Jack Breedlove of Lake Toxaway.

Folks were so very glad to see "Uncle Henry" McKinney out over at Hardin's store on Thursday. He is 90 years young and was very ill over the winter months. However he is thinking of making a garden.

Mr. and Mrs. Bass Reinhardt of S. C., Mr. and Mrs. Jack McKinney of Franklin and Mrs. Mary Ellen O'Shields and children visited Mr. and Mrs. Tom McKinney on Sunday.

Mrs. Ethel Lee, Mrs. Frank Frost and Mrs. Wilma Ruff and son visited friends in the Toxaway community one day last week and Mrs. Ruff had them as supper guests at her home here on Whitmire road.

We all are very proud of our little Heart Princess, Jane Summey of this section. She won for Upper Transylvania county. Congratulations Jane!! She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Summey.

Carl Waldrop On Honor Roll At Georgia Tech

Carl Waldrop has been named on the Honor Roll for the Fall semester at Georgia Tech, Atlanta, Ga.

An Honor graduate of Brevard High School, Carl is majoring in Chemistry at Georgia Tech.

We all are very proud of our little Heart Princess, Jane Summey of this section. She won for Upper Transylvania county. Congratulations Jane!! She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Summey.

Science for You BY BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: The Stubborn Balloon.

NEEDED: Two cans, a rubber balloon, soap suds, nail and hammer.

DO THIS: Make a nail hole in one can. Put air into the balloon, and try to push it into the can without the hole. It may be impossible. Now try pushing it into the can with the hole. Place the balloon in the end of the can with the hole, suck air out of the hole, and see if the balloon can be drawn into the can that way. It is easier if the balloon is covered with suds.

HERE'S WHY: To push the balloon into the can, friction between the metal and rubber must be overcome. In the can without the hole, air trapped in the can must be compressed also. As the balloon is pushed farther the air pressure increases.

If air is removed from the can by suction the balloon may be drawn in, pushed actually by the greater pressure of the air outside the can. Suds will reduce the friction.
