Brevard College Among Colleges Receiving Fine Library Grant

A $500,000 grant to the North Carolina Foundation of Church-Related Colleges to aid the book purchase programs of the 26 member institutions' libraries was made by the William R. Kenan, Jr. Charitable Trust.

Called the William R. Kenan, Jr., Library Enrichment Fund, the grant will be allocated over a three-year period, said foundation board chairman Archie K. Davis.

Mr. Davis announced the grant at the foundation's annual meeting here today. He said the foundation this year received approximately $750,000 in gifts — the largest amount in the NCFRC's 18-year history — from more than 400 business and industrial firms, foundations and individuals.

The Kenan grant, Mr. Davis said, is to be used by the member institutions solely for the purchase of books and other reading materials for their libraries.

Mr. Davis added that the fund is keeping with Kenan's belief "that a good education is the most cherished gift an individual can receive."

A long-term distribution formula will be applied in allocating the grant, and calls for the first 60 per cent of the gifts divided equally among the 26 colleges, and the remaining 40 per cent to be dispersed on a pro rata enrollment basis.

Dr. Robert A. Davis, President of Brevard College, expressed deep appreciation for the support of the Church-Related Colleges throughout North Carolina through the Foundation. The Kenan Grant will be especially helpful to Brevard as it continues to update and to expand library holdings. Brevard College is one of the twenty-five church-related colleges in North Carolina participating in the Foundation.
