The Transylvania County Board of Education has granted permission for the high schools in the county to allow students to earn elec-tive credit through participation in the Junior Achievement program.

Jim Hudson, President of the JA Board of Directors, said this was indeed good news for many young men and women.

"The JA program has been highly successful here, and this will give it an added boost," he stated.

The announcement came from Superintendent Harry C. Corbin, who said the action was taken at a recent school board meeting.

Home Ownership Up In Transylvania

many parts of the country.

According to the latest findings, some 68.0 percent of all dwellings in the local area are now owner occupied.

By way of comparison, the home ownership rate in the rest of the United States is 58.9 percent and, in the State of North Carolina, 61.0 percent.

Much of the progress in this rection was made before the sharp decline in building that occurred in the last few years. Home buying became possible for more families during the period because of bet-ter incomes and because mortgage money was readily at reasonable obtainable

The figures on home ownership, released by the Department of Commerce, are based upon data gathered during the recent Census of Housing.

They show that, out of a total of 6,511 year - round ing units in Transylvania County, some 4,427 are now owned by their occupants.

The slump in residential construction in the past 10 years is indicated in the of-figial figures. They show an in-crease of only 9.5 percent in one - family homes in the per-iod, although the national population rose 13 percent.

Most of the new construction that did take place was multiunit housing — to accomodate two or more families.

Families that were unable to acquire houses in recent, years, because of the shortage or because of the high prices asked, turned to ren-ovating and remodeling their homes. Nearly $15 billion was spent for such improvements in the past year, the government reports.

The value of homes in Transylvania County rose sharply in the last few years, the fig-ures show. The median asking price for homes is now $13,900, compared with only $7,600 in

The overall worth of lo-cal homes, on that basis, comes to $61,535,000, consid-erably more than in 1960.

As a result, the proportion of local homes that are now owned by their occupants is high and stands comparison with the ownership rate in
