

FROM THE EDITOR'S CORNER

By EDITOR JOHN ANDERSON

A big weekend is coming up! The Fourth of July observance is always a busy time...

There's the Olin picnic... Opening of the concerts at the Brevard Music Center...

Little League baseball, you might say, is for the kids. But you will find that the older people are really turning out for the games.

And probably the biggest booster is Lewis Osborne.

In his day, and we won't say how many years ago that was, Lewis was quite a ball player himself.

He not only turns out to watch the games, but in a pinch, he pitches in and umpires.

That's being young at heart.

Brevard was well represented at the World Premiere of "Jump", and Governor Scott and celebrities from the movie were on hand to greet the crowds...

We lunched with Tom Ligon and Collin Willcox-Horne, the stars of the show, and found them to be most charming.

Somehow, we had the impression that Ligon might be somewhat of an arrogant kid, but that's not the case at all.

He's a regular guy, and he does an excellent job in the movie.

Collin, a native of Highlands, was a bit disappointed with her role. Some of her best scenes, she said, were cut out for Southern showing...

Incidentally, "Jump" is currently playing here at the Co-Ed theatre.

It's good to see Dr. John Matheson back from Vietnam.

During his spare time in that war zone, Dr. Matheson helped to relieve the suffering among the Vietnamese by working at a makeshift dental clinic...

During this summer, Dr. Matheson will be working here in Brevard with Dr. Wilburn

When you think of prescriptions, think of VARNER'S. adv.

Davis and Dr. Milton Massey in their Head Start program.

Welcome home, Doc!

Borrowed... The true mark of an executive is often illegible.

In these days of the credit cards and installment buying, we find in the clothing department some of the gals look like they're wearing only the first installment.

In the 1700's it was "Give me liberty or give me death."

In the 1800's it was "Give me liberty."

In the 1900's it's just "Give me."

An anthropologist was interviewing the top kick of a tribe of cannibals, according to The Right Approach, the bulletin of Van Nuys Airport, Calif.:

"Do your people know anything about religion?" he asked.

"Well," replied the chief, "we got a little taste of it when the last missionary was here."

These little bits came from the "Double Harness" section of The Scrap Book:

Marriage is a ceremony by which the grocer gets an account the florist once had.

Wife to marriage counselor: "There, that's my side of the story. Now I'll tell you his."

Overheard: "My wife is going to cooking school. She's majoring in defrosting."

Joke of the week...

The dejected fisherman, carrying his rod and reel and other fishing equipment, was on his way home minus a single fish. Suddenly his face brightened. Entering the local fish market, he ordered three bass, then putting down his fishing gear and holding out his hands, he told the proprietor:

"Just throw them to me, Mac, so I can honestly say I caught them."

And we also like...

The owner of a department store asked one of his clerks what he was doing in the sporting goods department when he was assigned to the greeting-card counter.

"Well, it happened this way," replied the clerk. "This fellow came in for a get-well card for his girl who had a broken hip. So I reminded him that he wouldn't be taking her out for a couple of months and that he might as well go fishing. That led to a sale of fishhooks, then a line for the hooks, then a rod and reel for the line, then a boat so he could get into deep water, then a boat trailer. And then I convinced him that he'd have to buy a car to haul the trailer, so I sold him my car!"
