Announcement of the award was made by James McClure of Asheville, secretary of the Fund. It consists of $300.00 and is a part of the scholarship program in which the Fund helps students in financing their training for nursing and other health vocations. Of basic importance in the selection of recipients is evidence of Christian character and a desire to be of service to one's fellowmen.

Applications for scholarships must be from one of the following North Carolina mountain counties: Allegheny, Ashe, Avery, Buncombe, Burke, Caldwell, Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Haywood, Henderson, Jackson, Macon, Madison, McDowell, Mitchell, Polk, Rutherford,

Advice Is Offered By Local Draft Board To Young Men

(Continued From Page One) Peeler, "seem to think that the are eligible for induction this year, particularly those with numbers below 175—the current processing ceiling—have a very good chance of being processed for induction after draft calls are restored," Mrs. Peeler said.

"Many young men," said Mrs. Peeler, "seem to think that the Selective Service Act has permanently expired and that they probably will never be drafted, some of them also think that the entire system has stopped. They are wrong, since it is only the induction authority that has expired. They, therefore, may be unintentionally breaking the pute that produced the "Walton War" 161 years ago.

At the instruction of the Georgia State Legislature, on motion of a Decatur, Ga., lawmaker, Representative Larry Thomason, Georgia Governor Jimmy Carter has sent North Carolina Governor Robert Scott a letter. In it he requests that Governor Scott appoint a commission to study the location of the border between North Carolina and Georgia—the same dispute that everyone thought had been settled 160 years ago.

A similar letter was dispatched to Governor Winfield Dunn of Tennessee, for Georgia, after revival of the old dispute and investigation by Rep. Thomason, claims some 200 square miles of North Carolina and Tennessee. The strip claimed includes the town of Highlands in Macon county, N. C., parts of Clay and Cherokee counties; and the mining town of Copperhill and parts of the city of Chattanooga in Tennessee.

WALTON STORY

The ancient border conflict was called the "Walton War" because Georgia established the county of "Walton" in the disputed territory in the early years of the 19th century. Georgia state officials moved in and later defended this county in at least two shooting engagements against North Carolina state officials. According to the scarce historical writings now available, at least one and perhaps as many as 14 men were killed and about 25 prisoners taken.

The full, incredible story of this conflict, including the necessary background to make the whole thing believable, is too lengthy for this article. Because of the revival of the old dispute, and the state and even national interest it has aroused, however, the story will be published in full in this writer's "From Almar Farm" column, beginning next week in this newspaper.

HISTORY By ORA L. JONES

Full credit is given to Mr. Ora L. Jones of Jupiter, Florida, for the basic information and many quotes that will be used in the coming columns. Mr. Jones is the author of "The History of Transylvania County" and numerous other historical and colorful writings on Western North Carolina. He was editor and publisher of "The Sylva Valley News," the Brevard newspaper, from 1911 to 1917. His history of these events were written in 1915.

Readers interested in history are invited to clip the next several "From Almar Farm" columns if they would like to keep a written record of this little-known chapter of Western North Carolina history.

in the Middle East, playing concerts for Allied forces in the area. In 1946 she attempted to begin her career anew in London. Completely unknown, she found it difficult to gain a hearing with anyone until the well-known conductor Alec Sherman engaged her for a concert in Albert Hall. Playing the Greig Concerto, she received a standing ovation from the audience and, incidentally, went on to become Mrs. Alec Sherman.

For her August 1 appearance with the BMC Orchestra under Dr. Henry Janiec, she plays the same Greig Concerto, which would have to be called her "good luck" piece. On the same program the orchestra will be heard in the Bizet "Symphony in C" and Debussy Nocturnes.

The Saturday concert finds the Transylvania Symphony Orchestra under conductor Emil Raab playing the Dvorak Fourth Symphony and Chamberier's "España Rhapsody." Featured peice of the concert is the Mozart Third Violin Concerto with BMC faculty member James Ceasar as soloist.

Mr. Ceasar, who is chairman of the String Department at Wichita State University, serves as concert master and soloist with the Wichita Symphony and guests with the Las Vegas Symphony.

On Friday night, the inimitable John Richards McCrae and the Music Center Opera Workshop present Meredith Willson's "The Music Man." With over three hundred students at the Center, it is a safe bet that no other production of the musical has come so close to employing all "Seventy-Six Trombones" of its toe-tapping featured number. Nearly all the band instrumentalists on the Music Center grounds appear in the parade finale.

"The Music Man" is an exercise in Americana nostalgia. It tells of a roughish salesman of band instruments and his effect on a small, turn-of-the-century Iowa town. In the title role is Asheville native and local favorite David Rae Smith of the New York City Opera Company. Smith, who proved that he knows his way around the musical stage in last season's "Kismet," meets a lovely but worthy adversary in the person of Marian the Librarian, played by soprano Janice Janiec. Also featured in the show are Jim Ryan and Marty Redden of Hendersonville, and Ross Magoulis, Gretchen Lund and Sherry Rouse.

For lovers of barbershop singing Director McRae has found a sweet-sounding quartet from his Opera Workshop. Choreography is by Barbara Ferguson, setting by David Holcombe, and Music Center Director Henry Janiec conducts.

Friday and Saturday performances begin at 8:15 p.m., the Sunday matinee is at 3:30 p.m. Ticket information and performance schedules may be obtained by contacting the Brevard Music Center Box Office, 883-3338, P. O. Box 592, Brevard, N. C.

Mrs. Peeler also stressed that local boards are continuing to consider co, hardship, and student deferments and to take other classification actions. "Young men who planned to submit requests for deferments or exemptions are encouraged to do so," Mrs. Peeler said.

"The expiration of induction authority does not affect our responsibility to classify young men," Mrs. Peeler added.

Gov. Scott's entourage left Sapphire to inspect another development by a subsidiary of Certain-teed — Connestee Falls. The firm owns 3,900 acres at the Connestee site which is emerging as a vacation spa and year around residential community. A motel will be opened on the property August 8, and George Cobb has designed an 18-hole championship golf course for Connestee.

During the informal ceremonies, James A. Parker, President of the Valley Forge Corporation, a division of Certain-teed, confirmed the fact that a million dollar manufacturing facility is to be erected at Hillsboro, near the governor's home.

Mr. Parker disclosed that construction of a 100,000 square foot manufacturing plant at Hillsborough will begin at the end of August.

"The plant will have in excess of 200 employees initially upon completion," he said, "and most of the major work will be handled by area suppliers in the constructing and equipping of the plant which will manufacture building components and modules for moderate priced housing."

Certain-teed President Meyer revealed that the company is currently engaged in another major North Carolina project to provide approximately one thousand shelter units for educational institutions.
