SOCIAL SECURITY

Questions And Answers

By NORRIS G. GRUBBS
Field Representative

Q. My husband and I both worked for many years. Now we are retired and get social security retirement benefits. He has recently been offered a job that will pay him $3,000 a year. We heard that since we filed a joint tax return we can credit $1,500 of his earnings to him and $1,500 to me. That way neither of us would lose any social security checks during the year. Is this true?

A. No. Your husband's total earnings will determine the amount of social security benefits he'll get during the year. However, your checks won't be affected by your husband's work if you are getting benefits based on your own work record. If you are getting wife's payments, your benefits as well as your husband's would be affected by his earnings.

Q. I am a single woman in my late thirties. As a result of an accident, I have been severely disabled since I was 10 and have never worked under social security. My father who was my sole support died recently. Can I collect monthly social security benefits as his dependent?

A. Since you were disabled before 18 and have been unable to work since that time, you might be eligible to get monthly survivors benefits. Call any social security office as soon as possible.

If your mother is living, she should also check at the social security office. She may be eligible for payments, too.

Q. I lost an arm while serving in Vietnam, but it has not kept me from working full time. I receive disability payments from the Veterans Administration. Can I also collect social security disability benefits?

A. No. You cannot receive social security disability benefits unless your impairment makes it impossible for you to engage in any substantial work.

Q. Is a 16-year old boy eligible to continue to receive his social security check from his deceased mother if he quits school and goes to work?

A. Yes, if the boy does not earn more than $1680 in a year. Whether he is in school or not has no effect as long as he is unmarried and does not earn over the exempt amount.

"Spofford" Being Held Over At The Flat Rock Playhouse

Because of popular demand, the Vagabond Players announce that the delightful comedy "Spofford," following a week of capacity audiences, is being held over at the Flat Rock Playhouse.

The first hold-over production for the Vagabonds was in 1949 with "My Sister Eileen" (with Rosemary Prinz in the title role), and the most recent were last season's "Look Homeward, Angel" and the world premiere production of Lawrence and Lee's "The Crocodile Smile." The Vagabond Players, since their organization in New York City in 1937, have presented 288 productions, and given 2,668 performances, playing before nearly three million North Carolina Patrons.

Based on the novel "Reuben, Reuben" by Peter De Vries and adapted for the stage by Hermin, "Spofford" played for over a year on Broadway with Melvyn Douglas in the title role. Newspaperman actor W. C. "Mutt" Burton, a Vagabond performer for the past 20 seasons, plays Spofford, a suburban chicken farmer who matches wits with the invading wealthy folk from the city who have moved into his rural town.

Principal roles in the large cast are portrayed by Ellen Kelly, Earl Wentz, Ellen Evans, Walter Williamson, Margaret Kinness, Marianne Hyre, Sally Nall, Ralph Redpath and Johanna Erlenbach.

The complex production is staged by Anita Grannis, the multi-sets of the play were designed by Walter O'Rourke with Bobby Hiers in charge of lighting. Dennis Mauldin is stage manager.

Anyone with the name of Spofford is admitted free.

August 29 — Dr. C. Newman Faulconer, Pastor First Presbyterian Church, Greenville, South Carolina
