Many Are Attending Film Series Of "Civilisation"

Both at the morning and evening showing of the second film, 'The Great Thaw', in the Kenneth Clark series CIVILISATION. These films, shown last week Wednesday dealt with historic and art developments from the time of Charlemagne, about 800 A.D., to the ninth century and the development of Gothic Art.

were done with a sense of play — where even war and theology could become a sort of game; and when architecture reached a point of extravagance unequalled in history. After all the great unifying convictions of the 12th century, high Gothic art can look fantastic and luxurious. And yet, these centuries produced some of the greatest spirits in the whole history of man, among them St. Francis of Assisi and Dante.

the early 15th Century. This period brought a combination of art and science.

The interested public is invited to the 10 a.m. showing each Wednesday in the Church School rooms of the Brevard Presbyterian Church or to the evening showing of the same film at 7:30 p.m. in the Seminar Room of the Brevard College Library.

This Week's Film
The film shown on Wednesday, August 18th, is entitled 'Romance and Reality'. The height of Gothic Art developed in the age of the Crusades. Lord Clark comments: "I am in the Gothic World, the world of chivalry, courtesy and romance; a world in which serious things

Next Week's Film
On August 25th the film will be entitled "Man—The Measure of All Things" It touches on the emergence of the modern world in Florence with its many world-famous artists. The Renaissance started in Florence in

DOROTHY MANNERS' Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD—It is impossible these days to read Andy Williams' name without its being linked with that of his estranged wife, Claudine Longet. Or of Ethel Kennedy, loudly touted on two continents as his next wife. So let's get this out of the way first. It was not the first question I asked him when we met at Scandia. I haven't that much chutzpah. It was the last. I said, "Don't jump over the table, but just what is the status of your marriage to Claudine? Will there be a divorce?" He didn't jump over the table. But the question slowed him down. When he replied, there was a lot to be read between the lines. "I don't know, I honestly don't know," he said slowly. "Claudine and I see each other and spend a lot of time with the children. There's no strain in our relationship. "I feel there is very little sense in going as far as divorce unless there's a good reason for it. Like one or the other partner having someone else in their lives they want to marry. As of now, that isn't the case with us." But to get back to the beginning of our luncheon rendezvous, Andy was a few minutes late because he had been taping a 90-minute interview with a German crew sent here from Berlin to talk with the singer whose "Love Story" record is the No. 1 seller in Germany. "In Japan, too," he grinned. It didn't sound concealed. If facts are facts, why not state them?

fickle NBC, are discussing "specials" with his agents; and his records ("the beautiful, beautiful records") are selling like butter-milk flapjacks, particularly the beautiful, beautiful "Love Story." "Over the years, I've had a lot of luck with songs from motion pictures," he says. "One of the biggest, 'Moon River,' was from 'Breakfast at Tiffany's'; from motion pictures of the same titles came 'Days of Wine and Roses,' 'Charade,' 'Born Free,' and now 'Love Story,' which may turn out the biggest of all." Speaking of films reminded me of something puzzling about the Williams career: he is one of the few top singers who has reached and maintained, over many years, the salary and celebrity status of a Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Elvis Presley and Bing Crosby without the benefit of appearing in motion pictures. "I've made a movie or two. The point is, they haven't made me," he grins. "I did 'I'd Rather Be Rich' with Sandra Dee at Universal, and, like all Ross Hunter films, it made money. I've tested for a couple of other roles. One I lost to Dean Jones. I don't remember what the other was. I'm not saying that if Mike Nichols came along and tapped me for his next picture I wouldn't jump at the chance. So far—I haven't heard from Mike. It doesn't matter. "The base of my career is records. As long as I can keep on making them and they keep on selling around the world, I'll be happy." Currently, he's launching his new album, "You've Got a Friend," and getting ready to make the song the big number of his two-week stint at the Sahara Tahoe and the engagement following at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas. Then he's probably off to Russia for that big TV special in which he's a clinch to sing "Love Story" in Russian. All these things are on the platter for Andy, everything falling into place and in the groove, with the possible exception of the ladies in his life about whom he "really doesn't know."
