The Shoal Falls Farm Road will probably be blocked due to construction of the new Henersonville access road. A map will be distributed and signs posted showing an alternate route to the Guion Farm.

Gala decorations will greet you as you arrive at the picnic site. The Decoration Committee requests that all decorations be left up so they can take them down and store them for future use.

As always, we are concerned with the safety of everyone participating in the picnic. Therefore, adults are requested to keep a close eye on the children so they can be protected from injury. Our capable Medical Staff, Tom Conner and Carol Orr, will be at a central location to treat any injuries.

Cleanup after the picnic has always been a big job. The Cleanup Committee asks everyone to try to make this a "litter free" picnic by placing trash in appropriate containers.

ILITARY BALANCE SHIFT

By HENRY CATHCART

Central Press Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Next time you are tempted to side with defense spending critics who say our military budget should be slashed, consider the words of seven distinguished Americans who have spent the last two years studying America's military posture.

"The convergence of a number of trends indicates a significant shifting of strategic military balance against the United States and in favor of the Soviet Union," says a majority of President Nixon's Blue Ribbon Defense Panel.

"If these observable trends continue, the TIS, will become a second-rate power incap-

U.S. will become a second-rate power incapable of assuring the future security and free-able of assuring the future security and freedom of its people."

And what is most disturbing, the panel concludes that "neither the facts concerning these trends nor the ultimate danger is generally understood by the public, which for the most part remains uninformed and hence apathetic."

While liberals rant for cuts in defense spending, there has been a dramatic shift in the world's balance of power. "A. quarter century of clear U.S. strategic superiority has ended," says the panel.

The Soviet Union has moved significantity ahead of the U.S. in ICBMs, the principal weapons system of the nuclear age.

The Soviet navy—modern and rapidly expanding—is now challenging U.S. naval superiority in every category except also craft carriers.

The U.S. retains, for the time being, a substantial edge in the

The U.S. retains, for the time being, a substantial edge in the smaller, short-range SLBMs launched from Polaris submarines. But the Soviet Union has a major submarine construction program which by 1973 or 1974 could mullify this advantage.

The U.S. subsonic B-52 bomber force still outsumbers the Soviet strategic bombers by a tiree to one margin, but both mations recognize the relatively obsolete character of this wearons system.

There are two basic reasons the U.S. finds itself on the brink of becoming a second-rate power.

The panel diplomatically explains that U.S. military planners of the 60s assumed that if both superpowers had an adequate retaliatory capability neither would prepare for or risk a first strike. But the Soviet Union, we now realize, rejected this plan and has deployed a strategic weapons system designed for a first-strike capability.

Although the committee does not acknowledge it, there is also the factor of U.S. military preoccupation with the Vietnam war, putting first priorities on that conflict and letting our strategic position slip away elsewhere in the world.

Whatever is at famit, the panel eloquently expresses the logic of why we must make the painful decisions to spend tax dollars to regain at least an equal footing with the Soviet Union.

The road to peace has never been through appearament, unilateral disarmament or negotia- finished the sould be seen that the sould There are two basic reasons the U.S. finds itself on the brink precisely to the contrary," says the panel.

"Among the great nations, only the strong survive, Weakness of the U.S.—of its military capability and its will—could be the gravest threat to the peace of the world."

Faculty-Student Workshop Begins Of Democratic Leaders Here CONTINUING TREND WILL NEW Fall Term

New students from 20 states and several foreign countries will begin arriving on Sunday, August 22nd, with returning students coming back on August 24th. Registration is scheduled for August 25th at Boshamer Gymnasium, An expanded curriculum in religious studies, his-tory, and physical education will be available to the almost 600 students who are expected to enroll.

"Brevard College has served our region well for many years", stated President Davis. "We desire to be an increasingly effective institu-tion of higher learning, contributing our maximum to the development of this area."

Hugh Morton Speaks At Meet

Morton's address was his concern for the divisions in state Democratic party.

"We are in trouble in the coming months and years in North Carolina," he said, because the Democratic par ty is so split up. Somebody needs to bring the party back together. We must be able to show a united front to the Federal government in matters that are important to

"Coming from farther east and with interests farther west than any other obvious candibridge the gaps," he said.

Ending his prepared marks, Mr. Morton asked for questions or contributions from the audience as, he said, he has in the 90 other counties he has visited recently. "What can the governor do for your county that is not being done or is not being done enough?" he asked. The answers to this question, he said,

The lack of a Military Retirement Exemption in state income tax and the controversial Intanglible Tax were cited as measures discouraging retirement in North Carolina.

Mr. Morton noted the subdate for governor, I think I can jects Transylvanians wanted looked into and stated an unequivocal stand against drug

"I shall not support legalized marijuana in order to get the young vote," he said. On this subject, he also offered the conviction that a comprehensive program citing the dangers of drug abuse should be made a mandatory and recurring part of public school training.

Citing the racial troubles recently experienced in Wilming-

"The trouble in Wilmington was not of our doing," said. "And similar troubles will be experienced in other parts of the state if we do not have a governor who can deal effectively with this kind of thing. The best man to do this is one who plays it straight down the middle of the road, a level-headed moderate who has the respect and confidence of both races— who will not be influenced by the radicals on either side.

"I think I have the reputation," said Mr. Morton.
