

All Day Care Facilities In State Must Be Licensed In 72

By Staff Writer
The North Carolina General Assembly in July, 1971, passed into law a mandatory licensing program for day care facilities. The law, effective January 1, 1972, provides for the establishment of a Child Day Care Licensing Board who will administer the program.

Children under two years of age in any facility must be kept separate from older children, and with a full-time adult always in attendance. Staff members required to be responsible for the care of children shall not have responsibility for food preparation.

One of the most important mandatory standards included in the law is the one that states, "Each operator or staff member shall truly and honestly show each child in his care true love, devotion and tender care." But many people believe that children in groups away from their homes need more than tender, loving care. The law does not make mandatory a carefully planned program of daily activities under the guidance of an experienced, mature staff person. Without this provision, day care could be no more than mass baby sitting.

This State Board will consist of five State officials, Commissioner of Insurance, Commissioner of Social Services, State Health Director, State Superintendent of Public Instruction and Commissioner of Mental Health; and five citizen members who operate day care centers for profit, one citizen member with no direct or indirect pecuniary interest in any day care facility, and two parents of preschool children. The Board will hire a Director and staff, make rules and regulations, and develop policies to implement the new law.

The law covers all day care facilities or child care arrangements where there are more than five children for more than four hours per day, where a payment, fee or grant is made for care. Every center must have a license.

The mandatory standards for the license include sections on medical care and sanitation, health related activities such as hot lunches, snacks and naps, location and type of building, fire prevention, indoor space requirements (25 square feet per child) outdoor space requirements (75 square feet per child) qualifications for staff, record keeping, staff-child ratio, and size of groups.

There should not be more than 25 children in one group; if there are 26 or more children, two or more groups, each with its own staff member should be provided. In centers with 29 or less children, the ratio is one staff person for every 10 children, including cooks. For centers with more than 30 children the ratio is one staff person for every eight children up to age 2 years, one staff person for every 12 two-year olds, one staff person for every 15 three year olds, one staff person for every 20 four year olds, and one staff person for
