

Will Hold Ground-Breaking Ceremony For New Hospital On September 19th

Architect's Drawing Of The Proposed New Transylvania Community Hospital

There will be a ground-breaking ceremony for the new Transylvania Community hospital on Sunday, September 19th, on the site now occupied by the old Brevard beginning at 2:00 o'clock.

Jack C. Dense, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, cordially invites the public to the ceremony on September 19th. The project, as approved by the Trustees, the medical staff, the administration and personnel.

Regarding the ceremony and the pledges to the "Fund For Your Life" campaign in which Transylvanians raised more than a million dollars, Mr. Dense issues the following statement:

"It has been two years since your fund-raising campaign, and the Trustees are happy to announce that contracts have been signed to start construction. We regret the many delays encountered in obtaining matching funds and receiving approvals from the many governmental agencies.

"These contracts were signed even though all necessary funds are not available. Building costs have increased about 10%, and some anticipated revenue has not been received. At this time we are faced with a possible deficit of $200,000. The project cost is $2,960,963 while current funds from all sources, including your pledge, amount to $2,760,889.

"Because of the urgent need for new medical facilities in the county, the Trustees have decided we must move ahead with the project in spite of this shortage of funds. As a result it may become necessary to ask you to extend your pledge for a short period of time to help meet these commitments if we are unable to secure funds from other sources."

Local Horse Owners Can Have Animals Vaccinated

All Transylvania County horse owners will have the opportunity to have their horses vaccinated for the prevention of Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis beginning Friday, September 10. The Department of Defense has developed a highly effective vaccine against this disease. The U. S. Department of Agriculture will furnish the vaccine at no cost and pay accredited veterinarians for each horse vaccinated, properly identified and reported. Horse owners should call the Brevard Animal Hospital at 883-8105, or the County Extension Office at 883-2780, by Friday, September 10, at 5:00 p.m.

Plans call for a schedule similar to the rabies clinics which have been held during the past. In order to know how many clinics will be needed and where they should be held the following information is needed: how many horses does the owner have, where they are located, when the owner can bring them to a clinic, and who can be called once the clinic place and time has been established.

Short notice is being given due to the fact that the vaccine will come from Waynesville the desire of providing an educational opportunity to the firemen of Western North Carolina in hopes it will better prepare them to protect the citizens of their communities.

daily and has to be used within 12 hours to be effective. VEE is a highly fatal virus disease of horses, mules and ponies. It also affects other animals and humans.

Beginning September 9 all horses, mules and ponies will be quarantined to the premise to which they are located. As soon as they are vaccinated against VEE the quarantine is automatically lifted and they are free to move within the state. It is important to note that the vaccine for the Eastern and Western types of Encephalomyelitis is not effective against VEE. Dates and places of the clinics where the animals can be vaccinated will be announced within the next few days.

New Overnight Mail Service From Brevard Is Announced

Brevard Postmaster, Charles Y. Patton has amplified the new mail service program recently announced by Washington headquarters and has identified the local areas which are to receive overnight delivery of first-class mail originated within the area served by the Brevard Post Office and deposited by 5:00 p. m. in certain collection boxes.

282, 286, 287, 288, 297, and 376. These numbers include all post offices that are associate offices of the Asheville Sectional Center, the Hickory Sectional Center, the Charlotte Sectional Centers, and the Johnson City, Tennessee, Sectional Center.

On August 26th, Postmaster General Blount unveiled the Postal Service's new goal of overnight delivery of local area first-class mail deposited by 5 p. m. at post offices or in collection boxes located on arterial streets in business sections. The Postal Service has set October 31st as the deadline for achieving a 95 percent goal.

"The Postmaster General has pointed out that this program will affect more than half of all first-class mail sent in the United States," Postmaster Patton said. "So customers of every Post Office in the country will be benefiting from the new service goal."

Substantially more than half of the 52 billion pieces of first-class mail handled annually are for delivery in the city where deposited or in nearby communities.

The areas outlined by Postmaster Patton are those within which next-day delivery will be provided for Zip-Coded, first-class mail, deposited by 5 p. m. on weekdays in business areas, and at collection points on main thoroughfares.

Countywide Tour

State Day Care Consultant Impressed With Local Centers

Mrs. Betty Thompson, Day Care consultant with the State Department of Social Services, spent September 3rd in Transylvania County with officers of the Transylvania 4C Program.

They visited churches and community centers all over the county which have expressed an interest in sponsoring preschool centers in their buildings.

The centers will be partially funded by Appalachian Regional Commission funds and operated by churches or community groups. Local funds for expenses are received from the United Fund.

Mrs. Thompson was much impressed by the excellent facilities she saw and stated that the county certainly could be proud of its church and community center buildings.

Mrs. Thompson also thought very highly of these groups which are considering having their buildings used through the week.

This shows tremendous community awareness of a need for preschool opportunities for the majority of our children, local observers point out.
