Cathey's Creek Baptist Church Has Homecoming, Mortgage Burning

Good Crowds Are Attending Film Series On Wednesdays

More than 150 different people have shared in the weekly series of films on 'CIVILIZATION' edited and narrated by Kenneth Clark, British historian and art critic.

These films, 50 minutes in length, are shown by the Friends of Transylvania County Library each Wednesday. There are two showings: Morning 10 a. m. in the Presbyterian Church House, and Evening - 7:30 p. m. in the Seminar Room of the Brevard College Library.

This week's film is the 'half-way mark; number seven, entitled "Grandeur and Obedience". It deals with historic development and art of the 17th Century. The Films already shown include: "The Frozen World," "The Great Thaw," "Romance and Reality," "Man - The Measure of All Things," "The Hero as Artist" and "Protest and Communication".

The films to be shown in the coming six weeks are: "The Light of Experience", "The Pursuit of Happiness", "The Smile of Reason", "The Worship of Nature", "The Fallacies of Hope", and "Heroic Materialism".

This is a very unique and valuable offering on the part of the Library for a community the size of Brevard. The presentations include historic events, great artists in sculpture and painting and excerpts from great English literature.

The culmination of more than 10 years work on the part of the congregation and several pastors was celebrated Sunday at a special Homecoming and Picnic at the Cathey's Creek Baptist Church.

For this was the occasion when the last payment was made on an $11,000 mortgage - the final 20 percent of the debt incurred with the building of a new church to replace the old frame building which had stood since 1887.

Following the Homecoming message by the pastor, the Reverend Kenneth E. Bragg, and before a large Homecoming audience, Jerry Jerome, Sr., of Brevard Federal Savings and Loan Association, accepted a final check from church Treasurer, Mrs. A. C. Waldrop, and handed over the mortgage document for burning.

"The mortgage burning," said the Rev. Bragg, "proves the truth of the old saying, 'Where there's a will, there's a way'; and shows the results that can be achieved with the application of another phrase from the Scriptures, 'They had a mind to work.'"

Immediately afterwards, the congregation moved to the recently completed church picnic grounds for an old fashioned Dinner on the Ground. Following the dinner, three groups of gospel singers presented a music program.

The singers were: the Peacemakers Quartet from Asheville, the Fellowship Quartet, also from Asheville, and the Nether-ton Family from the Candler area.

Often called "the Mother of Baptist Churches" in this part of Western North Carolina, the new $50,000 Cathey's Creek church is the fifth church to stand at or near the same site since the church was founded before the end of the 18th century.

Planning and fund raising for the new church began in 1960. It was opened for services and dedicated in the Spring of 1968. The last $11,000 was paid off in the past 15 months.

Jerome of Brevard were among the out-of-town guests.

The annual decoration was held and a nice offering was taken to help on cleaning of the cemetery. It would be nice for anyone having loved ones buried there to come help with cleaning or possibly send an offering to help if they are unable to attend to help.

Mr. and Mrs. Bass Reinhart of Canton visited Mr. and Mrs. Tom McKinney on Sunday.

Mrs. Lona Breedlove was able to visit her brother Robert McKinney one day last week. Mr. McKinney hasn't been feeling too well.

Wiley Owen of Gloucester is spending sometime with Mr. and Mrs. Ward McCall here.

The Rev. Frank Fenwick of Greenville, S. C., visited Mr. and Mrs. Ken Riley and Nellie McKinney on Saturday. He and Mrs. Fenwick visited Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Barton also.

Little Rose Ann and Sherrie Eubanks of Rosman spent the weekend with their aunt Mrs. Fowler and family.

Albert and Nellie McKinney and family visited an aunt Mrs. Texie Cairnes and son Kay on Sunday afternoon. Also a short visit with Carl Couch at Penrose. The Cairnes live in Henderson county.

Mrs. Ethel Lee and son, Albert Lee, Lura, Debbie and Ricky enjoyed a nice picnic and ride on Saturday.

Mrs. Fred McKinney is reported to be improving at her home. Her son James is honored to now be employed with American Thread.

Mrs. Reba Stamey is also reported to be improving at her home.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Maze Waldrop are sorry to learn of the loss of their fine milk cow just recently.

Cool Front Moves Into The Cathey's Creek Community

By Mrs. Kenneth Riley CATHEY'S CREEK - Our section experienced some cool air on Sunday and Monday of this week, the cool front was attributed to the hurricane season. Folks attending the homecoming at Cathey's Creek Baptist church last Sunday report a most grand time, with plenty to eat and a large crowd with four groups of special singers. Mrs. John Mann was able to attend from Atlanta, Ga. Also Mr. and Mrs. Tolly Campbell of Easley, S. C. and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry

Inside WASHINGTON MARCH OF EVENTS SENATOR HOLLINGS MUST LOWER SIGHTS WIFE NO. 2 MAY CURT HIS POLITICAL CAREER By HENRY CATHCART Central Press Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON - Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., ended any hopes he had of landing the second spot on the next year's Democratic presidential ticket when he took a new bride recently. Hollings, a racial moderate with a "New South" image, was divorced by his first wife of 24 years last November. They had four children, ranging in age from 11 to 20. After moderate Democrats scored impressive victories in southern elections last fall, Hollings was prominently mentioned as a vice presidential possibility on a ticket that would bring back the old Kennedy-Johnson East-South axis that has proved so successful for the Democratic Party in the past. Hollings is best known here for his crusade against hunger and malnutrition among the poor. After launching hearings into that subject, he frankly admitted that he had ignored the problem as governor of South Carolina - a confession that endeared him to Washington liberals. Hollings new wife had been on his staff since 1966. They were married in a large ceremony at The Citadel in Charleston. But she is a Catholic and a ranking cleric in the Charleston Diocese had advised Catholics against attending the service because of that church's opposition to divorce and remarriage. Because of the Democratic Party's past dependence on the Catholic vote in the industrialized states of the Northeast, a second marriage so close to the 1972 campaign will certainly knock him out of the vice presidential picture. The senator's position in South Carolina politics is not immediately endangered, however. He was re-elected to a six-year term in the Senate in 1968 and will not be up again until 1974. What affect his divorce and second marriage will have among his "Bible Belt" constituents cannot be accurately gauged as yet. THE AVERAGE congressional letter-writer may think his complaints do no good. But politicians can be influenced by the voters back home. Latest case in point: A national magazine carried a story about all the "goodies" members of Congress provide for themselves and asked readers to respond with letters of protest to their congressmen. One of the items mentioned was cut-rate hair cuts congressmen provide for themselves and staff members. At five barber-shops in House office buildings they can get a hair cut for a mere 75 cents - only a fraction of the going rate in Washington. Letters of protest indeed poured in and now the House Administration Committee has voted to raise the cost of hair cuts to $2. While still below Washington's average rate of $3.50 for a cut, that figure will save taxpayers - who subsidize the House barber shops - nearly $100,000 next year. REP. WILBUR HILLS, D-ARK., the House Ways and Means chairman sometimes mentioned as a presidential possibility, is starting to set the part of a national politician. He plans to fly to Brussels in November for economic talks - the first time he has ever been out of the country in his 43 years.
